CHAPTER 11

BIG GUS read in Sheila's face that his shot had gone home. He couldn't scare her, but when it came to her family—

"It's strictly business with me," went on the racketeer. "You got a kid sister, for instance, that likes to go dancing . . . A lot of things could happen to her . . . I ain't sayin' they will . . . But they could."

Patsy! He'd found Sheila's most vulnerable spot. Too well she knew how easy it would be for Patsy's venturesome feet to dance her into disaster.

Sheila wished heartily she'd never come to this place. And yet . . . there was Mickey to be thought of. She gathered courage.

After all, Big Gus had a vulnerable spot, too.

"All that talk doesn't scare me, Mr. Mornick," she said,

All Holding Companies Face Ban

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today he favored elimination of all holding companies.

The President made the statement at a press conference in expressing unalterable opposition to the modification of the "death sentence" in the utility holding company act which had been proposed by Wendell L. Willkie, head of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, as one condition to an "understanding" with the administration.

The President did not indicate how he would terminate the holding company practice, but said remote control of local community banking should be ended as well as similar practices in the utility and other fields.

WHY ANY?

Asked if bankruptcy was the way out, the President replied in the negative and said there were various other ways.

He also was asked if the taxing power was to be utilized, answering that he had not reached that yet.

Mr. Roosevelt told a large gathering of reporters holding companies should be wiped out even down to those of the first degree. Why have any at all? he asked his audience.

ALL LINES INCLUDED

He replied with an emphatic affirmative when asked if he would extend his principle to all lines of business.

He then gave his illustration of the community bank which was controlled in a large financial center. He said the little banker was going and that was a bad thing.

Why, he asked, can't a small bank support itself, especially nowadays with federal supervision and deposit insurance?

Justice Cardozo Holds His Gain

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (INS)—Justice Cardozo of the Supreme Court, who is suffering from heart trouble, again held his own during the night, Dr. J. P. Earnest reported.

"Justice Cardozo has held the improvement which he showed yesterday morning," said the physician's bulletin.

"The doctors find this a hopeful sign."

William Green Says:

American's Price Raise Sound Step

A. F. of L. Head Hails Newspaper's Boost To 3 Cents to Protect Workers

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, hailed the decision of the Boston Evening American to increase its price to three cents as a protection to workers during a meeting with Massachusetts labor leaders last night.

"With cost of materials, especially white paper, sharply increasing and many industries suffering from the current recession, the newspaper's action is a sound step in full accord with the program of labor and government at Washington," President Green said.

"Special efforts are being made to check growing unemployment in the United States. I am gratified that instead of curtailing production and cutting the number of workers the Boston Evening American has chosen to raise its price and thus maintain employment."

Robert J. Watt, American labor's representative to the International Labor office in Geneva, Switzerland, also spoke in approval of the new subscription rate.

"The Boston Evening American's decision to maintain employment instead of reducing personnel sets an example for industry," stated Watt. "The action is in keeping with the soundest rules of American labor philosophy.

"By adopting the course it did, the Boston American does more than offer steady employment to hundreds of workers. It is providing for countless more wives and children, and in addition to paying normal production costs is doing its part to uphold the American standard of living."

President Green visited Boston to join with Massachusetts labor representatives in giving Watt a "bon voyage" dinner before his departure to Europe.

Watt will be the only American on the governing board of the International Labor Office and as such will represent both the CIO and Federation of Labor.

Strikes Spread In Paris Crisis

PARIS, Jan. 14 (AP)—France's wave of strikes spread today as President LeBrun sought a new premier to grapple with the grave social and monetary problems which forced the resignation of Camille Chautemps and his People's Front government.

Chautemps, having declined the president's first invitation to form a new cabinet, the president summoned Leon Blum, Socialist leader and former premier, to Elysee Palace.

Whether Blum was offered the premiership or merely called for consultation was not disclosed.

G. O. P. Picks Parkman to Win State

EXCLUSIVE!

By JAMES F. McENANEY and MARTIN POWERS

Formation of a Republican triumvirate to "cash in" on the split in Massachusetts Democratic ranks was revealed today to the Boston Evening American.

Sinclair Weeks, chairman of the Republican state committee, made known the plan and indicated the chief goal was return of a G. O. P. man to the governor's chair.

Henry Parkman, Jr., generally accredited with swinging Democratic Maurice Tobin into the mayoralty chair with 30,000 Republican votes, looms as most likely choice of Republican leaders.

HERTER IN "BIG 3"

Leverett Saltonstall, choice of the party for lieutenant governor in the last primary, and Representative Christian Herter, outspoken New Deal opponent, complete the "Big Three" named by Weeks.

Tomorrow Parkman assumes the post of Boston corporation counsel, symbolic of the key position which he holds in the city where all sides expect the most decisive battle of the election will be fought.

Laurence Curtis, 2nd, state senator from the Back Bay, is one of the ranking Republicans promising support to Parkman. More reasons why the new corporation counsel heads Weeks' list are these:

1—Although the office Parkman assumes tomorrow is normally for a four-year term, he can resign to become a candidate.

BOSTON VITAL FACTOR

2—Parkman is acknowledged to control the mass of Republican and anti-Curley votes which gave Mayor Tobin his victory.

Bickford's Own Story Of Battle

Says Legislator First Struck Him, Then The Fun Began

Nursing a wounded hand, Radio Commentator Leland C. Bickford, in a post-fight statement today gave a literal blow-by-blow account of the whirlwind battle of the State House corridor between himself and Representative Edward B. Bacigalupo.

Bickford, who stands six-foot-three and has a fighting weight of 225 pounds, declared he acted in self-defense against his shorter, but heavier, opponent.

"GRABBED MY COAT"

The belly-fisted radio commentator asserted:

"I left the hearing room and was walking with friends toward the elevator when Representative Bacigalupo loomed up in front of me. He stood right in my path and grabbed the lapel of my coat, muttering vile words which I do not care to repeat.

"He then threw a punch at me, which I managed to avoid. I called a man in uniform standing nearby, but before he could get to me, Bacigalupo made another pass at me and hit me in the face. Still trying to avoid him, I told the man in uniform to make Bacigalupo stop bothering me.

"I HIT FIVE TIMES"

"This man told me he was only a Senate officer and not a police officer. I then hit back at Bacigalupo.

"I hit him about five times.

"That is a nice sort of situation, where a citizen of the state is summoned before a legislative body and is attacked by a member of the general court in the corridors of the State House without any provocation when he comes to give information."

Witnesses added that the brief encounter was a gory one. Bacigalupo was severely battered about the face and Bickford cut his right hand when he struck Bacigalupo's teeth during the fight. Friends separated them.

Bickford Had Reach, Height

In their one-round battle today in a State House corridor, Representative Edward P. Bacigalupo of the North End gave away height and reach—but hardly weight—to Leland C. Bickford, radio commentator.

Bacigalupo is five feet 10 inches tall and creaks a loose floor under his 265 pounds, much of it around and around.

Bickford goes six feet two and one-half inches into the air, weighs 225, is well proportioned and has a long reach.

Fists Fly At Bribe Hearing

Leland C. Bickford, radio commentator, and State Representative Edward P. Bacigalupo, North End, Boston, came to blows in the corridor outside the Joint Rules Committee's hearing room on the fourth floor of the State House today.

Witnesses said Bickford punched Bacigalupo five or six times after Bacigalupo made a motion that looked threatening. At least one of the blows drew blood.

G-MEN ON JOB

After the battle which left the corridor floor spattered with blood, Bickford told a Boston Evening American reporter that North End mobsters trailed him to the Colonial Network news service room in the State House.

The radio commentator, who said he had been informed six members of the gang had been present at the hearing, declared:

"That's why I called the State House guards. It's a fine situation when a man is summonsed to attend a hearing and can't leave the State House without being attacked without provocation."

At the same time it was learned that G-men and special investigators of the intelligence unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau had "listened in" at the hearing.

The government men were said to have been directed by Director Clifton E. Mack to attend the sessions in connection with a Federal probe into the incomes of politicians and contractors.

Bickford may be summoned to appear before the Federal grand jury in the near future, it was declared. The bureau agents will seek a transcript of the hearing testimony.

Bacigalupo was named yesterday by Bickford as one of those he would summon if the joint rules committee would give him the power to summons witnesses to substantiate his charges that the

LEWIS IN ROOSEVELT PARLEY WITH CAPITAL, INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (INS)—Representatives of capital and labor met for an hour with President Roosevelt today, discussing a program of action to arrest the slump.

In the end, with John L. Lewis, chief of the CIO, acting as spokesmen for the group, this statement was made:

"We attended this conference with the President and discussed the gravity of the economic and industrial situation in this country.

"This group had had previous discussions, and were impressed with the desirability, if at all possible, of working out with the President and the administration a program of action between business and labor.

Standing beside Lewis as he spoke for the group were Thomas W. Lamont, partner of J. P. Morgan & Company; Owen D. Young, head of the giant General Electric Corporation; Charles Taussig, president of the American Molasses Company, and Adolph A. Berle, one of the earlier "brain trusters" in the New Deal.

They had nothing to add to Lewis' statement, and individually they declined to reveal specifically what subjects had been discussed at the conference.

It is known, however, that labor

Bickford Fights With Solon

Rep. Bacigalupo His Opponent In Battle

Apparently Bacigalupo objected to his name being drawn into the investigation in this manner.

Only a short time previously, the six-foot radio commentator nearly had come to blows in the committee's hearing room itself with Martin Hays, former member of the Legislature, whom he named yesterday as having "handled" $2500 allegedly paid by Revere dog track interests to a certain Senator.

Senator Samuel H. Wragg, president of the Senate and presiding officer at the joint rules committee's hearing, abruptly terminated the hearing in the confusion that resulted.

So tense was the situation that, in the confusion, it was not made plain whether the hearing merely was adjourned until some future time, or closed completely.

Wragg declared it "closed," but Hays, still in the hearing room, demanded to be heard, and Wragg informed him he "might be heard at some future time."

Previously the session had been recessed. When Bickford returned he refused to answer several questions propounded by committee members, whereupon President Wragg declared:

"This hearing is closed."

Bickford told the committee that unless he was given the right to summons witnesses he would continue to refuse to name members of the Legislature whom he considered dishonest.

DELAY DECISION

Questioned by Speaker Cahill, he declared:

"I did not direct my charges against all the members of the State Legislature, but against one who knows what I am talking about."

queries along the same line. Bick-
When Cahill pressed further ford declared he refused to answer "upon advice of counsel."

It was at this point that Hays jumped to his feet and demanded to be heard, offering to waive immunity for the privilege. His offer was refused and the committee then went into executive session.

After a brief conference, details of which were kept secret, Chairman Wragg announced:

"The committee has taken this matter under advisement. There is no decision at this time. The case will be considered at a further session of the joint rules committee."

He declared he did not know when the next meeting would be called. Findings of the committee will be reported to both branches of the Legislature, which will decide then on whether it will take action against Bickford.

FISTS LASH OUT

It was after this that Bickford left the hearing room, and was on his way out of the State House when he was accosted in the corridor, witnesses say, by Bacigalupo.

Bickford stopped, and the two men engaged in conversation that became rapidly more and more heated.

Then, according to witnesses, Bacigalupo motioned with one arm. Some said it "looked like a pass" at the radio commentator. Others said it "looked like Bacigalupo pushed at him."

In any event, the six-foot radio editor promptly exploded into action. His fists lashed out, and witnesses said they saw at least five or six blows take effect, one of them drawing blood.

The State House corridors were thrown into utmost confusion.

At Bickford's shoulder, as he struck out at Bacigalupo, was a bodyguard who had accompanied him to the hearing. The bodyguard, however, witnesses stated, took no part in the battle—indeed, some said, he was among the first to intervene to separate the combatants.

BOTH 200 POUNDERS

Bickford is 6 feet 3½ inches tall, weighs 225 pounds. Bacigalupo is 5 feet 10 inches tall, but weighs 260.

Bickford's earlier argument with Hays in the hearing room itself occurred when Hays, during a lull in the proceedings, arose and sought to address the committee.

"Keep that guy sitting down," Bickford yelled.

The committee may cite him either for contempt of the General Court—the Legislature—or may seek a law-court order.

This latter "short cut" today was regarded as the more probable, as, it was pointed out, there already is dissension on the floor both of the House and Senate over the "Bickford matter" and, therefore, to cite Bickford before either or both of those bodies might result only in protracted debate without definite action.

The near-encounter with Hays, whom he named yesterday as having "handled" $2500 in dog track money allegedly paid to a certain senator, came a short time before the hearing was terminated.

"Keep that guy sitting down!" Bickford yelled when, during a lull in the proceedings, Hays arose and started to address the committee.

"You can't," Hays said.

"Stay where you are!" Bickford snarled. "I'll put you in the penitentiary before I get through with you!"

The hearing room was thrown into confusion as, for the moment, it appeared likely the two six-footers would hurl themselves at each other.

Bickford had told close friends today that he feared bodily harm, and that was why he had a guard with him, the Boston Evening American was informed.

He said he had received threats, and that he had been told his papers, records, photographs and other evidence upon which he bases his charges that the Legislature has been "corrupted by dog track operators" might be "snatched" from him en route either to or from the legislative hearings.

His clash with Hays occurred just after Speaker of the House Horace T. Cahill again had asked him to name the senator who, according to his yesterday's statement, got the $2500 in 1934.

"Are you willing to give the name in executive session?" Speaker Cahill asked.

REJECTS NAMING PROPOSAL

Bickford turned to confer with his attorney, Clarence A. Barnes, and it was at this point that Hays arose and sought to address the committee.

After the excitement had subsided, Bickford, replying to Speaker Cahill's question, said:

"If any names I give are to be made public, I refuse to give them in executive session."

Speaker Cahill angrily retorted:

"We're here to clear this thing up, and you can't hamstring this committee by any such reservation.

"This committee, if it did not make public the names, would be accused by the public of hiding the facts.

"I'll give you this assurance, however: that this committee is not going to castigate anybody and is not going to put anybody on the chopping block."

Bickford said:

"If this were before a grand jury, the names would not be made public. I might just as well make them public here myself as give them to you in executive session to make public afterward."

QUESTIONS OFFERED

Bickford already had reiterated his refusal to name names unless, as he told the committee yesterday, he is given "power to summons witnesses" to substantiate his charges.

Speaker Cahill, no sooner had today's hearing convened, addressed Bickford as follows:

"The committee has drawn up the following question or questions to ask you:

"Will you, to the best of your ability, recall the questions and answers of yesterday's hearing, and state whether, after 24 hours' time for consideration, you wish to change any of your answers?

"Let me recall to your mind the following facts:

"1. That you have been informed that any statement made by you in answer to a question asked by this committee carries immunity.

"2. That you are under oath.

"3. That you have stated you know the names of certain members of this Legislature who have received money improperly.

"4. That this committee has assured you that if you will state such names it will summons all persons it legally may to prove or disprove the allegations.

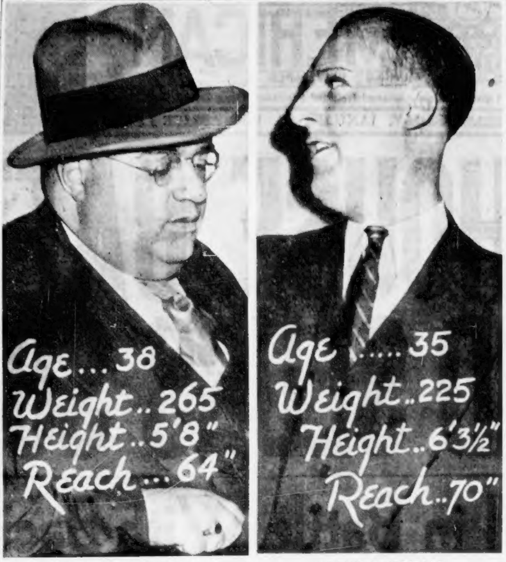
"5. That the committee cannot legally delegate to you or to anyone else the right to summons witnesses.

"6. That you have refused to disclose the names of these members.

"Such being the situation, and in view of the foregoing facts, do you still refuse to give the committee the names of the members of the Legislature?"

Bickford replied flatly:

"I do."



EDWARD P. BACIGALUPO

LELAND C. BICKFORD

The battle at the State House today between Leland C. Bickford, radio commentator and Representative Edward P. Bacagalupo focused attention to the physical makeup of the two principals. Here their age, weight and height are compared.

Fasting Dean to Keep 2-Year Silence on Plan

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 14 (INS)—The Very Rev. Israel Harding Noe, 47-year-old dean of St. Mary's Episcopal cathedral here, will have no further comment on his self-imposed fast for at least two years, he asserted today.

"It will be at least two years before I am ready to make a scientific report on this matter, and until then I will have nothing to say for publication," he told reporters.

Undaunted by the warnings of his physicians that he may collapse at any moment, the dean allowed nothing to interfere with his daily strenuous work schedule.

FIRM IN PLAN

Gaunt and emaciated by 12 days without food or water, the dean remained firm in his determination to continue his self-imposed fast to prove that man can live by spiritual food alone.

Walking with unfaltering tread, speaking in a firm voice, the dean yesterday conducted two meetings, and his parishioners were amazed by his vitality.

First, he conducted his regular communion service, taking the wafer and wine of communion, the only form of food that has passed his lips since January 2.

LIVED ON ORANGES

Prior to the beginning of the fast, Dean Noe subsisted solely upon oranges for more than a year, reporters were informed.

The dean, who shuns publicity, first leaped into public notice several years ago when his wife sought a divorce on the grounds her husband had become so absorbed with spiritual affairs he no longer was her material husband. The courts denied the divorce, and Dean and Mrs. Noe only recently were reconciled.

G.O.P. Plan Raid On Rivals Here

ing will hinge the results of the election. Governor Hurley's total in Boston put him in office and now the conservative-New Deal clash is expected to split Democratic ranks wide open.

4—The "youth movement" felt in Mayor Tobin's victory, will dominate the polls. G. O. P. leaders consider Parkman qualified to head this new group of voters.

Members of inner Republican circles declare a chief objective of Parkman during his term as corporation counsel will be to solidify Mayor Tobin's backing in the city administration. At the same time Parkman will be making his own following stronger.

The Republican chairman also pointed out to the Evening American that in spite of efforts already under way to inject persons from western parts of the state into the picture, it is Eastern Massachusetts' "turn" to provide the nominee for governor.

It was intimated by Weeks that John Haigis of Greenfield, defeated by Governor Hurley, will soon arrive in town to promote his gubernatorial interests. Republican chieftains, however, will seek a candidate living in or near Boston, they explained.

Weeks emphasized that Saltonstall, popular and able as former speaker of the House of Representatives, remains one of the outstanding possibilities. Representative Herter holds control of a conservative vote considered big enough to sway the election, leaders are agreed.

Many former "strong men" of the G. O. P. have become too entangled with the present state administration or Washington to qualify as candidates, Weeks said.

Insurgents Bomb Lines at Teruel

The government declared that little damage was caused, the highways leading into the key city bearing the brunt of the attacks. Meanwhile, dispatches from General Franco's troops declared his forces had been consolidated into the strongest lines in a year.

Job Seekers Lead Governor to Quit

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 14—Governor R. C. Stanford announced today there were no more jobs patronage seekers and closed his "employment office."

He said 40,000 persons had applied for 500 state jobs during the year. He said he won't run again because job seekers wrecked his home life.

Church Upholds Evolution

LONDON, Jan. 14 (AP)—Controversy swirled today over an Anglican Church commission's 292-page report on religious doctrine, which sets forth that one may reconcile the biblical account of the world's creation with evolutionary theories, and that the Bible need not be taken as the judge of historical or scientific investigation in any field.

Twenty prominent leaders of the Church of England took 15 years to complete the report dealing with fundamental questions of the virgin birth, angels, demons, evolution and the resurrection.

Here are some of the findings by the commission:

PAPAL CLAIMS—The Church of England still is bound to resist claims of papacy.

MIRACLES — The commission was divided on whether they occur, but agreed that God "could do" them if He "would." Some held He would not wish to perform them.

ANGELS AND DEMONS—"It is legitimate to suspend judgment" or treat them "symbolically."

EVOLUTION—The Christian doctrine of creation "leaves abundant room for a variety of theories as to the evolution of the world," and the universe "depends upon the creative will of God."

THE FUTURE—"We shall have means of recognizing each other in future life."

VIRGIN BIRTH—Historical evidence is "inconclusive," but this was one of the many things the members split on, with the Archbishop of York, who headed the commission, reporting that he accepted as historical fact the Lord's birth from a virgin mother and his physical resurrection from the tomb.

Critic Socked By Playwright

Tortilla Flat Digs Irked Kirkland

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (AP)—Jack Kirkland, playwright who dramatized John Steinbeck's novel "Tortilla Flat," didn't like the review which Richard Watts, dramatic critic of the New York Herald Tribune, wrote, and showed his resentment last night by hitting Watts on the jaw.

The play opened Wednesday night, the critics generally agreed Kirkland had not brought to life on the stage the engaging quality of the characters in the novel.

Watts wrote in part that Kirkland had written a "sly and disagreeable chronicle of an unappetizing lot of unpleasant people with funny dialects."

When Kirkland, known as the dramatizer of "Tobacco Road," walked into a restaurant and saw Watts, his anger flared. The clash followed.

Gen. Johnson Says:

ROOSEVELT BUSINESS PARLEY

White House Meetings Step in Right Direction

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—The pleasant conference between the President and the five big shot industrialists is a step in the right direction.

The three of the five who are known to me—Weir, Sloan and Chester, are all men of good will and I am told the same is true about the others. In other words, there is no shadow-boxing about this visit so far as they are concerned.

It is not generally known but it is literally true that, back in 1933, there was no one in all industry more sincerely in line with the President's social objectives than Mr. Weir—certainly no one in the steel industry.

It was a series of misunderstandings and errors that put him out in front in his fight with the Labor Board. In hearings before the first Labor Board, presided over by Senator Wagner, Mr. Weir's people appeared in a perfectly cooperative attitude and rules for a labor election were worked out.

On the eve of the election, and when there was no time to change, a subordinate of the board presented the National Steel Company with a set of rules inconsistent with those agreed upon with the board.

HUGH S. JOHNSON

Mr. Weir declined to change, held his election—and then the board disapproved it. The fat was in the fire. A fight started that is still going on.

But even that record has not changed Mr. Weir's eagerness to cooperate with his government in this war on depression—as he did in 1933. NRA, in the beginning, had no more sincere supporters than Mr. Weir and Mr. Sloan. It is refreshing to see these five men back at least offering to play ball.

It is an encouraging start, but it is no more than a start. The way ahead is long and hard and the problem full of prickles.

In the first place, after all, these are just five individuals. They do not even represent five industries. It is clear that no program has yet been discussed—just generalities. The great questions remain: (1) — Can some program of co-operation be worked out on which these men and government can agree? (2)—If so, can these bell-wethers get enough other prima donnas to support whatever is agreed?

That sounds simple but in practice it will prove to be one of the most difficult of jobs.

The first difficulty is that business has no responsible organization — not even big business. It is a kind of community of individual economic stars with all the pride, if not all the jealousy, of the Hollywood variety. The President's conferees will have the neat little job of tact and diplomacy of keeping all those ruffled feelings smoothed out and at the same time leading the hitherto unled leaders on some new but predestined path of peace.

On the other side, as soon as the President begins to play footie-footie under the table with these lately regained friends, all the professional business mistrusters among his retainers will begin jumping up and down along the wailing wall shrieking in anguish that he is "letting the people down."

The business barons will have to recognize all the time that the President has a political problem, just as the President should constantly keep in mind that they have no organization plus prima donna trouble.

There must be neither trading nor threats in this new effort—no "we'll do this, if you'll do that," or "if you don't so-and-so, we will (or we won't) do such-and-such." Just one such mishandling of this new and hopeful skillet could spill the whole mess of warmed-over beans.

It's a hard job but it's not an impossible job. And the President, plus the particular men who made the start, are about the best equipped people in the country to do it.

Harvard Student Hunt Clue Found

Indiana Man's Name Found in Diary of Missing Boy

The eight-state search along the Atlantic seaboard for 18-year-old Wilbur James Gould, missing Harvard student, suddenly turned to the Middle West today as state and local police and private detectives looked to Indiana for a mysterious man named "David Warner."

Numerous references to Warner in the missing youth's diary, that was found yesterday by blonde Mathilde Gould, sister of Wilbur, when she arrived in Cambridge from school in New York, caused detectives to try to seek the man who is believed to live in Richmond, Ind.

"See Warner Hotel Taft" read a note in Gould's room in exclusive Lowell House, found and turned over to police by Miss Gould, who is leading the search for her brother. A man named David Warner was a guest at the Hotel Taft in New Haven the day of the entry in Gould's diary.

Julius Bregman, New York attorney who was sent to Cambridge by Wilbur's father, wealthy manufacturer, said investigators were checking in Boston, New York, New Haven and Indiana. He also said federal men would be asked to aid in the case.

Beyond the meager clues unearthed by Miss Gould in her search of her brother's room, no indication has been found to hint what fate might have befallen the youthful honor student who was last seen Sunday by a chambermaid in Lowell House.

Open books, glasses, identification papers and cards were spread about Gould's desk in his room, indicating he apparently had no idea of being gone long when he left his room.

DETROIT, Jan. 14 (AP)—The Ford Motor Co. today announced that 10,000 employes laid off December 23 will be returned to work Monday. During the lay-off period, the company announced that fewer than 25,000 of the 87,000 normally employed at the Dearborn plant were idle.

SEARCY, Ark., Jan. 14 (INS)—Former Congressman Stephen Brundidge, 81, who served six terms in the House of Representatives, died early today at his home here.

Finds Her 'Son' Is Girl; Dad Asks Hospital Proof

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Jan. 14 (AP)—Lawrence E. Sanders, whose wife asserts the baby she brought home from a hospital should have been a boy instead of a girl, declared today "there's something funny about the case."

"I'm going to demand positive proof that this is our child," he said.

Sanders, a WPA worker, added that both he and his wife were determined to "fight it out" and would call on state police for assistance.

Mrs. Sanders said hospital nurses referred to the baby as a boy. When she took the child home at the end of 10 days she found, she said—a girl.

But Dr. George M. Simmonds, chief of the hospital staff, explained there could have been "absolutely no mistake," adding:

"This woman's child was fingerprinted, footprinted and an identification chain was placed around its neck immediately after its birth December 30."

Mrs. Sanders, unconvinced, pointed to a birth certificate issued by the state. It read:

"Name: Ellis Junior Sanders. Sex: male."

"I can love this little baby if there's nothing else for me to do," Mrs. Sanders said, "but I'll always think that my son is in some one else's arms."

Films Flaming Cloud 12 Times Big as Earth

'Prominence,' 625,000 Miles High, Passes Out of Picture

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 14 (AP)—The sun is presenting a fireworks display which movie producers might well term stupendous and colossal.

Dr. Edison Pettit, astronomer, is showing movies of a "prominence," a fiery gas cloud 96,000 miles wide—12 times the diameter of the earth—which appeared above the sun's chromosphere, or atmosphere.

Suddenly the prominence shoots up at 17 miles a second. Soon it is going 36, then 116, 327 and finally, as it passes out of the picture, 455 miles a second.

625,000 MILES HIGH

"It was 625,000 miles high when it disappeared through the top of the picture," said Dr. Pettit.

From its brightness scientists estimated it may have risen as high as the diameter of the sun—866,200 miles.

Greatest previous velocity observed was 328 miles a second and greatest height of a prominence 580,000 miles.

Part of the record prominence came back and entered the sun's chromosphere. The rest wasted away in space. It was followed by a huge display of "fountain" prominences of fantastic shapes.

WHAT OBSERVER NEEDS

To see the fireworks an observer needs, attached to a telescope, a spectro-heliograph, which blots out the main body of the sun and leaves visible its turbulent atmosphere.

The movies of the record prominence were made September 17 at the McMath-Hulbert Observatory near Pontiac, Mich. Dr. Pettit, who had been studying prominences at the Carnegie Institution's Mt. Wilson Observatory here, helped establish the Michigan Observatory.

O'Hara Asks U.S. Aid in Fight

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 14—In a surprise move Walter E. O'Hara today sped to Washington seeking federal aid to halt the latest attempt to oust him as head of Narragansett Racing Association.

His decision came soon after announcement by Raymond McManon, association secretary, that a meeting of the board of directors had been called for February 9 to consider plans for 1938.

O'Hara revealed his first appeal will be made to the Securities Exchange Commission, which he declared had final authority in calling such a meeting. The racing czar stated the meeting had been called without his authority and that no vote for such action appeared in the minutes of the last meeting of the board of directors.

He added he had still other plans to block his enemies and that he would bow to no one except a majority of the stockholders.

He further charged that McMahon, Albert Daly, of Providence, John F. Letendre, of Woonsocket and James E. Dooley, had joined with Governor Quinn in a plan to supplant him with Dooley, now a vice-president of the association.

The scheduled meeting is called six days before the racing division meets to consider applications for 1938 and assign racing dates. Governor Quinn, since his drawn out battle with O'Hara last Fall, has reiterated that Narragansett race track will never open again while O'Hara is in charge.

Snow--if Any--'Unimportant'

Weather Bureau Says So; And It'll Be Fair

Generally fair weather, with only a slight possibility of more, but "unimportant," snow was today's forecast by the Weather Bureau, which reports occasional flurries from St. Louis extending to New England.

A force of 4500 men and 500 trucks sanded streets and cleared away the snow in less-used thoroughfares.

Traffic moved freely in all sections of the city and pedestrians found crosswalks cleared at important intersections.

Temperatures hovered in the mid 20's. Coldest for the date was 8 degrees below zero in 1914, and the warmest was 59 above in 1932.

MISS DAVIES IN 'FAN'S' WILL

Nevada Postmaster Leaves Her Part Of Estate

Second Time Unknown Remembered Noted Film Star

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 14 (INS)—For the second time Marion Davies, the film star, has been remembered in the will of a "fan" unknown to her.

Word was received today from Nevada that the late Clark Alvord, veteran miner and postmaster of the desert outpost of Nelson, had made a bequest to the star and directed that she be one of the executors of his will.

MAKE-UP OF ESTATE

It was understood that 45 per cent of the estate was to be distributed to Alvord's legal heirs with the remainder going to Miss Davies. The estate includes shares in a mining company, a valuable lease on a mine and $1000 in cash. No estimate of the total value was given. Speaking of the other bequest, Miss Davies said:

"Once a war hero left me his medals. I have them framed in my room. I treasure them as I do the good will of all the war veterans, and, indeed, of all my friends."

Miss Davies said she had never met Alvord, nor did she know him personally. She continued:

"He wrote several letters asking for photographs, which were sent him in the usual course. He was always very kind and complimentary in his letters. I appreciated his good opinion of my work on the screen. I knew nothing more about him until I was informed of his will.

"Since he desired me to have a part of his estate and to be an executor of the estate, I must try to think what would be the best disposal to make of the funds.

"I imagine the best thing to do is to give the money to charity or to some public purpose in his name."

Neptune Is 340 Million Yrs. Older Than Thought

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP)—Government scientists made a little correction in the age of the ocean today—they say it's anywhere from 140,000,000 to 340,000,000 years older than had been estimated.

At sea over the subject, Dr. Arthur C. Spencer and K. J. Murata of the geological survey have arrived at new figures by what is known as the salt method.

Years ago, someone suggested that if it could be ascertained how much salt annually goes into the ocean, it wouldn't be so difficult to determine how long it has taken the sea to accumulate its 5,000,000 cubic miles of salt.

FIRST GUESSES WRONG

Scientists then made their first estimate, that the ocean was 100,000,000 years old.

Some geologists didn't agree. They said they found other evidence from rocks and minerals and various corrections were applied until the figure was increased to 360,000,000 years.

Now—just when a lot of experts thought they were getting warm—come Spencer and Murata.

No one, they contend, has taken proper account of what is known as the phenomenon of base exchange, which, boiled down, is the same principle as washwomen use to soften hard water.

HOW OLD ARE HILLS?

This means that the sea isn't doing all the absorbing of its salt. Substances such as silt from river water are doing their part, hence they believe 360,000,000 years is incorrect.

An estimate of 500,000,000 to 700,000,000—say Spencer and Murata—is a lot more like it.

"Geologists," said an Interior Department announcement of their research, "long have known that the sea was as old as the hills—"

Come, come, now—that puts us back where we started—how old are the hills?

Letter Clue in 2 Women Murders

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (AP)—From examination of a voluminous pile of letters and scientific analysis of a number of objects, police sought a clue today to the slayer of Mrs. Lenida Waite and Miss Jeannette Schuellain in the Waite home at Elmont, L. I.

Mrs. Waite and her young friend were found, bound with silk stockings and shot to death, in separate rooms of the modest little frame house near Belmont race track Wednesday evening.

The letters, detectives hoped, would offer a clue to support reports of a feud which existed between the Waite family and an unidentified man who threatened a dozen years ago to wipe out the Waites.

Since Mrs. Waite, a widow, and her son, George, 24, an electrician's helper, rarely, if ever, threw away letters or postcards, the Nassau county police were fairly expectant of finding something they could work upon.

Franking Cost $3 Per Vote

Engle Says Democrats Spent 75 Millions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP)—House members had before them today a calculation by Representative Engel (R.) of Michigan that Government departments, during the last four years, had sent out 2,568,594,407 pieces of postage-free mail costing $220,863,435.

The cost figure, he told the House, included the revenue loss to the Postoffice Department, printing the free mail and the cost of the paper.

He said he figured that $75,000,000 of the total was for political propaganda.

"Allowing you Democrats just twice as much as we sent out, it leaves $75,000,000 as the cost of political propaganda you have sent out in the last four years," Engel declared.

"This $75,000,000 of political propaganda cost the taxpayers $3 for every Democratic vote cast

Farmer Ford's 'Key' to U. S. Prosperity

Predicts Rear Engine For Auto Within Three Years

(Editor's note: This is the last of a series of three articles on Henry Ford of today. For the first time in more than 15 years a reporter was permitted to spend a typical day with Henry Ford at his engineering laboratories at Dearborn, Mich.)

By PAUL GALLICO

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Copyright, 1938.

DEARBORN, Mich., Jan. 14—The key to Henry Ford's theories of the return of prosperity is the farmer.

"The farmer raises enough food to take care of the country. He must be enabled to raise crops for industry, and industrial uses.

"We have got to get the country prosperous agai so that we can manufacture. Wheat is becoming as important to industry as it is for food. It is a wonderful substance.

"We are learning how to use it in industry, along with the soy bean. Wheat and the soy bean make splendid alternating crops without depleting the land. We will show him how to raise them for us at a profit. His profit will enable us to manufacture again."

There, in brief, is the Ford plan as outlined by him.

ACTIVITY AMAZING

His activity at the age of 74 is nothing short of miraculous.

When you think of his engineering laboratories here, you must not think of a compact set of rooms, but instead a series of vast, high-roofed areas bigger than a railroad station, so large that they dwarf the cars in them and make them look like toys.

And Ford is all over them during the day. He has an office but is rarely in it. He is all over the place, conferring with engineers at a table on which are piled gear discs and parts of machinery, tinkering with an engine, dropping in unannounced upon his executives to chat with them, or talk over an idea. His pace will tire anyone who tries to follow him.

LOVES ARGUMENT

It was late in the evening, after 5:30, at the end of a hard day, that Ford, still full of energy, dropped into the office of W. J. Cameron and sat and talked for an hour.

He loves an argument, whether he is talking about reincarnation or the active physical power of good, or his theories on economics. Several times he said:

"What do you think about that? Come on, give me a fight on this."

He cocks his feet up on a desk, leans back and grins.

The car of tomorrow — three years time, he estimated, will have the engine in the rear. He is designing and experimenting with it right now. And he added a typical Fordism:

"People will drive a lot more carefully and less selfishly when they find themselves sitting up in front where they'll have to take those bumps if they're careless. It'll help driving."

LOOKS TO FARMERS

He fingered a dashboard compartment door made out of vegetable cellulose.

"We're learning a lot about this stuff. We'll be making bodies out of it soon. Reinforced with wire, they'll be as strong as the steel bodies of today. The farmers will supply us with the materials for everything we'll put into our cars with the exception of the frame and the engine and the glass."

About wages, he said:

"Those other fellows don't want high wages. They want to pay low wages and get high prices. That's what the whole trouble is. They don't know how to do what we do, pay high wages and sell cheap so people can buy."

With regard to his opposition in Washington, Ford said:

"That'll pass. That'll pass away. Time takes care of everything, doesn't it?"

WORK IS PLEASURE

During all his talk one was struck with the thought that right or wrong, here was one man who was too busy with action, with doing things that he thought were right, to bother about those who were hanging onto his coat tails.

"If you know you're right, and the other fellow is wrong, there's nothing to do but go ahead and work, and everything will work itself out all right in the end, won't it?" he said. "Why we're going to sell that tractor to the farmer at a lower price than he's ever paid before in his life. Every farmer will be able to own one . . . ."

There is your Ford of today, too busy working on the things of tomorrow, to worry about the other fellow.

Recovery Way Told by Ford

In an exclusive interview with Merryle Stanley Rukeyser, noted financial commentator, Henry Ford discusses at length his views on the future of American industrial life and tells how he believes recovery may be accelerated. This interview will be published in next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser. It is the most complete expression of Mr Ford's views since the beginning of the current business recession.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

"Washington Merry-Go-Round," by Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen, sprightly and informative column on the inside activities of political Washington, is now a daily feature of the Boston Evening American. It will also appear in the Boston Sunday Advertiser every Sunday.

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Behind the Ludlow war referendum amendment which came so close to upsetting the Administration is the story of a hero who did not want to be a hero.

The gentleman in question is a big St. Bernard dog of a Congressman named Louey Ludlow, loved by everyone in Washington, and so anxious to reciprocate that he let himself in for a constitutional amendment which he did not agree with but which reverberated around the world.

Louey came to Washington 37 years ago as the correspondent for a group of Indiana newspapers, later wrote for the Columbus Dispatch, trudged weary miles through government departments, picked up handouts, buttonholed Congressmen, and became almost as much a fixture as the Washington Monument.

Then in 1927, following the retirement of Alfred Kirchhofer, Louey stepped into his shoes as president of the National Press Club, introduced Lindbergh to the club after his first historic flight, and immediately became famous. Shortly after that Louey went back to Indiana, capitalized on his fame and became the first newspaperman to jump from the press gallery to the House of Representatives.

FORGOTTEN RESOLUTION— In the nine years which have followed, Louey has been just as good a Congressman as he was a newspaperman. Among other things, he aims to oblige, and last spring tossed into the legislative hopper a resolution which he scarcely remembered.

But several months later, with war flaming in the Far East and threatening in Europe, his resolution providing that this country could not declare war without a referendum of the people, suddenly hit the front pages. Simultaneously the peace organizations (real authors of this bill) put the heat on him and his colleagues, both forcing them to sign a discharge petition to take the resolution out of the Judiciary Committee, where the Administration had it securely pigeonholed.

Finally, much to the surprise of the Administration, and to the complete amazement of Louey Ludlow, he found the petition completed with the necessary 218 names.

NERVOUS LOUEY—It was at this point that Louey began to get nervous. Louey, it must be remembered, is a good Democrat and strong for the President. So he was doubly embarrassed when called to the lower end of Pennsylvania Avenue and given a close-up of the Administration's point of view.

Sensing that Louey was getting cold feet, Dorothy Detzer of the Women's International League, ablest of the peace leaders, went to see him, told him how he was making history, how his name was in the newspapers of Greece and Bulgaria, Japan and Australia, how she was proud that she also was from Indiana.

Louey murmured politely but looked as if he wished he were back in the Press Gallery.

Later, still looking a little pale, Louey called a caucus of the signers of his petition and proposed that a showdown vote be delayed for a while. He had decided to spar for time.

"This will give us a chance," he counseled, "to get our bearings and line up support"

The suggestion was greeted with a howl of protests. "Oh no you don't" yelled Milwaukee's little Tom O'Malley, "you can't put over anything like that. If you haven't got the nerve to ask for a vote right away, then I'll do it."

Under this pummeling, Louey promised to move for a vote. When the House trounced the resolution, he turned to O'Malley and with a glint of satisfaction in his eye, remarked:

"Well, I told you so. But you knew it all and wouldn't listen!"

BAREFOOT BOYS—Senator Wheeler of Montana, once the flaming crusader against big business, was cross-examining Martin W. Clement, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, during the Senate railway investigation. In the course of his testimony, Clement remarked that he had risen to his high post from a poor farm boy. Wheeler chimed in to remark that he, too, had started as a farm boy.

Note—In his old crusading days Wheeler would have considered it politically dangerous to give his photo even to a small-town banker.

CONGRESSWOMAN—Privately, administration floor leaders rate Mrs. Mary Norton, chairman of the House labor committee, one of their biggest handicaps in passing the wage-hour bill.

Although a henchwoman of Mayor Frank ("I am the law") Hague of Jersey City, N. J., Mrs. Norton has gone down the line for a wage-hour act. But she is a complete washout as a parliamentarian, also is none too popular with her colleagues.

During the wage-hour wrangle last month she was repeatedly under fire, once on the charge of trying to put something over for her friend, Secretary Perkins, who is anathema to the House.

A more popular and able chairman would make the rocky path of wages and hours much easier, but there isn't anything the leaders can do about it. Mrs. Norton holds her place by right of seniority, and she has no intention of stepping aside voluntarily—no matter what happens to the bill.

MERRY - GO - ROUND — Announced North Carolina's Senator Josiah Bailey to newsmen: "I am now a national figure" . . . In an effort to reach adjournment by the middle of May, Democratic Floor Leader Sam Rayburn has undertaken to put one major appropriation bill through the House each week during the next ten weeks. This schedule would get the "must" legislation out of the way by April 1 . . . National concern over pure food and drug regulation resulting from the sulphanilamide deaths has interested several movie producers. One of them has purchased a scenario from Miss Ruth Lamb, publicity director of the Food and Drug Administration.

Quoddy Is Ready For 150 Youths

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP)—The National Youth Administration announced today that Quoddy Village, Passamaquoddy Bay, Me., would be reopened tomorrow for 150 young men to receive work experience and vocational guidance.

Aubrey Williams, executive director of NYA, said the training period for the boys from New England states and New York would last four or five months.

"Probably similar projects should be set up in other parts of the country, under different conditions," Williams said. "Plans for doing this are already being discussed. Meanwhile, the Quoddy project should be watched by all those who are eager to see the development of a practical way of preparing young people to meet the increasingly difficult task of finding suitable lifetime jobs."

Williams said it was "too early," however, to evaluate fully the results achieved at Quoddy last year, when 250 youths attended the experimental school.

Justice Brandeis May Quit Bench

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP)—Federal Circuit Judge Evan Evans of Wisconsin received mention today in capital speculation over the successor to Justice George Sutherland.

Other circuit judges, including Samuel Bratton of New Mexico and Florence Allen of Ohio, have been suggested previously. Associate Justice Harold M. Stephens of the District of Columbia court of appeals also was being discussed as a possibility.

Reports circulated in the Senate that President Roosevelt has received one more notice of approaching retirement and that a third might soon be forthcoming.

Some observers said Justice Brandeis, oldest member of the court, was on the verge of retiring, but close friends gave little credence to the report.

There also were reports that Justice Cardozo, now seriously ill, had told friends he wanted to get off the bench.

Woman High Judge O.K. to Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP)—President Roosevelt sees no reason why a woman should not sit on the Supreme Court, but he gave no indication today that he would appoint one.

He made the observation at a press conference when asked, apart from personalities and the existing vacancy on the court, if there was any reason why a woman should not be on the highest tribunal. His reply was no.

Infant State Ward Suffocates in Crib

The child, Laura De Sisto, 19 months old, has been under treatment for a cold, Dr. Edward B. Gilmore reported.

Ulster Seeks Bar To 'Solid Ireland'

Plans Vote on Isolation as DeValera Prepares for London Parleys

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Jan. 14 (INS)—A swift stroke to checkmate Irish unification efforts, was seen today in the northern Ireland government's ordering of a general election for Feb. 9.

Less than 24 hours after Anglo-Irish talks were announced for London next Monday, with partition as the chief topic, Viscount Craigavon, Ulster prime minister, proclaimed a "show-down" poll.

"I have decided to put the position of Ulster beyond all doubt by a general election," said Lord Craigavon significantly. "I have no doubt what Ulster's answer will be."

With Lord Craigavon's prediction that Ireland will remain divided ringing in his ears, Eamon De Valera, prime minister of the New Irish State of Eire, will go to London Monday to survey with Premier Neville Chamberlain and other officials the entire Anglo-Irish question.

CANVASS PROBLEMS

The tariff war, defense, and the division of Ireland which has existed since the Irish Free State was created in 1921 over the same council table where De Valera will sit Monday, will be canvassed.

The election for the Northern Ireland Parliament was generally expected to be held next May.

Since the new constitution for the southern three-quarters of Ireland went into effect last month, with the former Free State renamed Eire, the Dublin government has ignored division of the island.

A tacit invitation was held out to the people of Ulster to join in a single state. But the other dominions were quick to tell Dublin in blunt words that the name and authority of Eire extended only to the terrain of the former Irish Free State.

STRESSES PURPOSE

Lord Craigavon stressed the numerous occasions on which he has affirmed the "loyal solidarity of the Ulster people" in their decision to remain an integral part of the United Kingdom along with England, Scotland, and Wales.

For the first time since the Free State and Great Britain became locked in their economic conflict in 1932, De Valera goes to London with a considerable advantage.

Rumania Rules Farm Program, Ousts Jews

Lifts Load Off Poor, Drives Semites From Trades

BUCHAREST, Jan. 14 (INS)—Rumania's new semi-Fascist cabinet, meeting under King Carol's guidance, issued a series of decrees embodying an agricultural relief program and eliminating Jews from the cotton, tobacco and salt trades.

Convening in the royal palace, the cabinet decreed the establishment of a government monopoly to distribute cotton yarn among Rumania's peasants. Twenty-two million pounds of the yarn will be imported annually to supply the nation's market in the farm areas. Taxes and freight rates on cotton yarn will be lowered.

DISSOLVE COMPANY

In another edict, Premier Goga's anti-Semitic cabinet dissolved the Discom Company, the country's leading firm in the tobacco and salt business, thus eliminating the concern's two Jewish directors. The company will be replaced by a government agency, "exclusively employing Aryan Rumanians."

The cabinet also reduced third class passenger train fares 25 per cent as a measure of relief for Rumania's predominantly agricultural and generally poor population.

Farmers were declared exempt from the income tax and hereafter will be required to pay only small taxes on the sales of their products.

OIL PRICE DOWN

The price of lamp oil used for illuminating most Rumanian farm homes was ordered reduced.

While the cabinet was meeting with King Carol, the secret Fascist order of the Iron Guard through its leader, M. Codreanu, issued a statement saying:

"We warn the world against trying to convince Carol to establish a dictatorship, because such a step would cast shadows over the glory of royalty and would mean disaster."

$180,000 Music Building for Esplanade

New Gift Structure To House Concerts And Pageants

The drive by Attorney General Paul A. Dever to enforce use of public trusts today bore fruit through announcement that a beautiful $180,000 granite building will be erected next spring to house Esplanade concerts.

The structure will be built on the site of the present shell in fulfillment of terms of the will of Maria E. Hatch, Boston spinster, who died 12 years ago.

It will be known as the "Edward Hatch Memorial" in memory of the donor's brother.

William J. Hickey, Jr., of Brookline, and John Burke, former assistant district attorney, announced plans of the project. They were appointed by Suffolk probate court following the drive by Dever to have many large bequests released from trust and used for the purposes for which they were left.

The building will be used for presentation of pageants and lectures, as well as the Esplanade concerts.

Grandma at 28 Proud Record

Woman in Medford Loves Nickname

"My grandson," says an attractive 31-year-old Boston waitress, proudly displaying a snapshot of a three-year-old boy.

She's not joking. Mrs. Mildred Thurlow of Riverside avenue, Medford, became a grandmother at 28.

At the same time her mother, Mrs. Edward Boyle of Bowdoin street, Dorchester, became a great-grandmother at the age of 45. (Mrs. Boyle was indignant recently when a woman of 55 was hailed as the youngest great-grandmother in the country.)

And when Robert Joseph Charbonneau was born in 1934 to Mrs. Robert Charbonneau, 14, the first person to greet him was his great-great grandmother, Mrs. Betsy Weston, 61, of Pawtucket, R. I.

Interviewed at her home, Mrs. Thurlow discussed how it feels to be a grandmother while some of her girlhood chums are still in the "beau" stage.

"Everyone calls me Granny, and I love it," she said. "My husband, who is just 33, gets a big kick out of being called Grandpa."

Asked if she approved of early marriages she said:

"When my daughter told me she wanted to leave grammer school and get married just after her 14th birthday, I wasn't pleased. But what could I say? I became a bride at 13, and my mother at 14.

"So I gave them my blessing and signed the papers, and now they have a lovely boy and are happy."

Seeks to Adopt Yuletide Waif

Mrs. Shirley Marcantonio, cleared of the last charges arising out of her attempt to claim as her own "Christmas Carol," tiny baby found in Roxbury, today planned legal adoption of the waif.

The twice married Dorchester woman was acquitted in Dorchester court today, as was her divorced first husband, Patrick F. Feeney, on charges of violating an old blue law which forbids a divorced couple living under the same roof.

He said he was merely a boarder with the Marcantonios, paying them $10 weekly.

Benjamin Marcantonio, the woman's present husband, said today he was in accord with her desire to adopt the baby, and that the necessary legal steps would be started shortly.

A two-months police search for the real mother of the waif has been fruitless.

Wells to Run Vast Estate for Bride

CHICAGO, Jan. 14 (INS)—Roe Wells, 50, who in a surprise elopement two days ago married the former Mrs. Emily Flamm Gilchrist, widow of the millionaire timber baron, today took over management of her vast estate.

Wells said they will make their home in New York. He has resigned his $25,000 job as vice president of the Doughnut Corp. of America.

Harvard Shares Will

Harvard will receive 40 per cent of the residue of the estate of Arthur H. Lea, Norristown, Pa., publisher, it was revealed today. No estimate of the total value of the estate was given.

Hit-Runner Speeds Away With Body

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., Jan. 14—Police today sought a motorist who struck a man on the highway near here and raced away with the body wedged inside a fender.

Pursuers were unable to find trace of the body. Witnesses say the automobile was traveling at 70 miles an hour.

Soviet Parachute Record Holder Dead

MOSCOW, Jan. 14 (AP)—The death of Captain Nikolai Evdokimoff, claimant of the world's record for high parachute jumps—7900 meters (25,918 feet)—was announced today. It was not indicated whether he died in a fall. Evdokimoff was credited with having made 324 leaps.

Printers' Union Sticks To AFL; For Labor Front

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (AP)—The 100,000-member International Typographical Union has aligned today in support of a united labor front and an end to warfare between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization.

The Typographical Union is affiliated with the AFL; its president, Charles P. Howard, is secretary of the CIO, but Howard last night called a halt to recurrent membership agitation for a swing of the entire union to the CIO camp.

The typographers will stick with the AFL, he said in an article prepared for the January issue of the magazine, Printing, adding:

"Our members desire that all national and international unions should be under one banner and work as a unit to improve conditions for the nation's wage workers."

He said definitely:

"The union members desire to see unity established in the labor movement. They favor an organization policy which will prove successful in building the movement to a maximum of strength."

LEWIS DISPUTE ENDED

Howard also made clear that the CIO was not attempting to organize the printing industry on an industrial union basis and "neither is it attempting to influence the printing trade unions to change their form of organization."

The fundamental issue between the AFL and CIO has been that the AFL advocates organization on a craft basis, while the CIO favors organization on an industry-wide basis.

Meanwhile the dispute between David Dubinsky, head of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union (CIO), and John L. Lewis, head of the CIO, apparently was ended.

Dubinsky had called on Tuesday for renewal of peace negotiations with the AFL and accused CIO leadership of scuttling the recent conferences. Lewis retorted Dubinsky was acting like "Eliza crossing the ice" and should decide whether he was "flesh or fowl or good red herring."

Dubinsky indicated that, since he had brought the question into the open, it was up to somebody else to carry through.

William Green, president of the AFL, said in Boston he deemed it "inadvisable to comment," although he upheld Dubinsky to the exten of saying:

"His report of the meeting between representatives of the AFL and the CIO is correct. The committees reached an agreement. Mr. Lewis vetoed it."

Criminal Action May Result From Testimony

Testimony in the weird Salem mate-swapping trial that was halted temporarily by death of a witness, was perused today by the staff of District Attorney Hugh A. Cregg.

The prosecutor was reported ill early today at his Lawrence home, but subordinates took up the task of seeking criminal action out of the divorce testimony involving Mr. and Mrs. Raymond S. Lee and Mr. and Mrs. Calvin M. Watson.

Both defendants in the suits, Mrs. Estelle M. Watson, 28, now of Hamilton, and Lee, Beverly chauffeur, had publicly admitted being parties to the alleged spouse-trading agreement as opposing counsel went over the records today, preparatory to resuming the amazing marital conflict Tuesday.

Denial that any such lurid arrangement existed had been made by Mrs. Edith Lee, 27, Beverly governess, and Watson, Topsfield tree surgeon, plaintiffs in the sensational cases.

Not a part of the record, but a unique incident in the bizarre trials, occurred when Lyman T. Smith of Saugus, step-father of Mrs. Lee, died on the witness stand with words of praise for his step-daughter on his lips.

CONSOLES FRIEND

Mrs. Watson, who has acknowledged intimacies with Lee on a dozen occasions and who has insisted Mrs. Lee was equally intimate with Watson, walked over to the sobbing woman and said:

"This is a very unfortunate mess we are mixed up in, but I want you to know I feel terribly sorry for you now. I know there's nothing else I can say."

And Lee, the "kiss and tell" man who first mentioned the wife-swapping, sent out to a restaurant for hot coffee for the woman he says frequently spent the night with his best friend.

"I'm really sorry," he said to her, and walked away.

Mrs. Watson previously had given her version of the strange marital situation in the Watson-Lee homes, her story substantiating in its important details the testimony of Lee.

She related the circumstances of their sleeping "four in a bed" in July, 1936. After explaining the Lees had spent the evening at her home and saying Mrs. Lee suggested they stay there all night, she went on:

"We all went upstairs to the second floor. All four of us walked into one of the bedrooms. Shortly afterward, we all lay down on the bed—crosswise. I was with my husband and Mrs. Lee was with her husband. We all went to sleep there."

Two weeks later, Mrs. Watson related, the Lees again spent the night at the Watson residence. Mrs. Watson said she spurned Mrs. Lee's suggestion that they occupy the same bed because it was too uncomfortable.

Continuing, she said:

"When I came out of the bathroom, I observed my husband and Mrs. Lee in my bedroom. I asked my husband what he was doing. He told me to go away and join Lee.

"He said to me: 'You're just a wet blanket, anyway. Lee won't hurt you.' So I went into the other bedroom where Mr. Lee was."

Mrs. Watson testified to other intimacies at both the Lee and Watson homes and then described an incident in an automobile on Cape Cod. They had gone for a ride in Watson's car, she said, and had returned to an Orleans cottage.

"When we got back," she said, "my husband and Mrs. Lee got into the other car, leaving me and Mr. Lee in the car we had been riding in. A little later I wanted to smoke a cigarette, and I got out of the machine to go to the other car to ask my husband for a match.

"As I opened the door, I found them together. I asked my husband what he was doing. He wouldn't tell me."

At this point, Judge Edward B. O'Brien interposed with a remark that the testimony had been "revolting." He said he was "sick of hearing the same stuff over again." He ordered counsel to put specific questions to the witness.

The last time the quartet swapped mates, Mrs. Watson said, was a week before detectives and Watson swooped down on Mrs. Watson and Lee last April.

She denied intimacy with Lee on the night of the raid. She offered to show how she had been clothed, insisting she had been fully attired, but the court declined.

Smith had grinned heartily at a sally with Judge O'Brien a few minutes before he collapsed. He had been stoutly defending Mrs. Lee, his step-daughter. His last words were:

"She's a good girl, your honor," he said. I don't think she'd do anything wrong. I-I-I——"

Mrs. Lee, Smith's wife and other relatives went to the stricken man's assistance. Judge O'Brien ordered no one to leave the courtroom. Doctors were called and pronounced the man dead.

Smith had denied a story told by Lee that Mrs. Lee, in Smith's presence and with her arms around Watson, had declared she'd rather live with Watson in burlap than with Lee in silks.

'Toodles' 'Love' Letter In 'Wife Swap' Case

The now famed "Toodles" letter allegedly written to Mrs. Estelle M. Watson, wife of his "best friend," Calvin Watson, Topsfield tree surgeon, by Raymond S. Lee, 31-year-old Beverly chauffeur, was today before Salem Probate Court for study.

Principals in the amazing Salem "wife-swapping" double divorce suit, both Lee and Mrs. Watson have testified the missive was merely written in a love-letter writing contest between these two, Watson himself and Mrs. Edith Lee.

However, Watson, who, in suing for divorce, names Lee, and Mrs. Lee, who in her divorce suit names Mrs. Watson, deny any such contest being held. The letter:

Dear little girl:

Do you really love me? It's terrible being away from you these two weeks. Not being able to hold you in my arms and press the sweetest pair of lips in the world to mine. How can you be so heartless, darling? With all that has gone on between us, not to write me just a few lines. To let me know you haven't forgotten, that no one has taken my place. I have been in the Post Office in Brewster dozens of times, still no word. Please darling, I have been, and always will be sincere when I tell you how much you mean to me. I can't stand not hearing from you. In this little world of ours, only two things make life worth living, one is you, the other me, together.

I may be a crank and a sourpuss and possibly a lot of other things, in your estimation. I'm probably not worth any girl's wasting her time on. But I'll try to re-build myself and come out of it for you, dear. You've made me know what true love is, sweetheart. I hope and pray you are not just playing with a fellow, who has changed all his ideas of life. I know I'm a very poor writer. Penmanship was entirely out of my line in school.

Please darling, I love you, Please don't show this letter to anybody; and if you still care for me just a little, write, if only a few lines.

I've been true, dear, and always will be, as long as you'll have me. You are all I have in the world. Please keep this confidential, even from my best friend Cal.

From one who loves you, more than you'll ever know.

I trust you, precious, to keep all this to yourself. It means everything to me, dear.

I'll be watching every mail. Please don't fail me.

All the love in the world.

Two Arrested After Holdup

HOLYOKE, Jan. 14—Seized as armed bandits who entered the Main street office of Dr. Louis Hoss, 58, bound him with adhesive tape and then ransacked the place, two men were arrested by Westfield police today.

Two doctor's bags, $37 and a quantity of narcotics, all stolen from the doctor, were found in the suspects' machine, according to police. The gun was also in the car, police say.

The bandit pair entered the office as Doctor Hoss was preparing to leave. They knocked him to the floor and bound him while he was stunned. After the robbery they escaped in a waiting car driven by a third man.

When they left, the doctor managed to free himself and call police. He later identified the pair, police said.

DiStasio Plea To Hurley

While his father, Frank DiStasio, Hudson torch killer, apparently resigned himself to death in the electric chair next Monday night, Joseph DiStasio, his son, condemned as an accessory before the fact of murder, made his last move to escape a similar fate today.

The son's last move was an appeal to Governor Hurley to commute his sentence from death to one of life imprisonment.

The pair are scheduled to die for the insurance plot murder of Daniel Crowley, a longshoreman, who resembled the elder DiStasio. The pair had hoped Crowley would be identified as Frank DiStasio whose life had been previously insured for $25,000.

Bill Urges State CCC Camp Survey

A resolve asking the Legislature to study the advisability of state conservation camps to carry on the work started by federal CCC camps was filed today by Representative Thomas F. Coyne of Dorchester.

Coyne urged the state take over camps closed by the federal Government in the reduction of its program, as a means of providing employment and training for idle youths.

Records disclosed today that only 216 bills have been introduced in the House since the session began January 3, and 671 since the special session began November 15. More than 5000 were proposed in the first two weeks of the regular 1937 session.

Bandit Victims View 3 Nabbed As Suspects

Victims of ten recent Cambridge holdups today viewed three bandit suspects captured through radio co-operation between Cambridge and Brookline police.

A few minutes after Max Gerstein, 34, latest victim in the series of holdups, was robbed by three men in his drug store in Magazine street, Cambridge, the suspects were arrested near Kenmore square by Patrolman William Charlton of Brookline, who had heard a Cambridge police radio broadcast of the crime.

Acting on a radio tip Patrolman Charlton followed a taxicab he saw coming off the Cottage Farm bridge, stopped the car and took the three occupants to Brookline station.

Gerstein, describing the holdup said two men came into his store while he was talking with a salesman. They worked very calmly, menancing Gerstein with a gun subsequently found to contain tinfoil instead of bullets. The salesman, writing at a counter, was unaware of the holdup until they left.

Three Cambridge police officers who drove by while the robbery apparently was in progress later recalled seeing a taxicab outside the drugstore and broadcast this tip as soon as they learned of the holdup.

The trio booked on charges of suspicion of armed robbery, identified themselves as Frederick Laline, 27, no address; Donald P. Bernard, 23, of Sloe street, Somerville and Henry F. Lynch, 24, of Rush street, Somerville.

$59.19 Is Loot In 3 Holdups

Bandits at Everett, Boston, Cambridge

Bandits operating in Dorchester, Cambridge, and Everett, obtained a total of only $59.19 for the chances they took, police blotters revealed today.

The most unusual of the holdups occurred at the office of Howes Cleanser Co., Church street, Cambridge, where two armed men demanded the balance of what newspapers said they received in a holdup one week ago. At that time Miss Edith Murphy, a cashier said the bandits obtained $75.

Entering the shop again the bandits demanded to see Miss Murphy and when told by Miss Mary Flanagan she was out one of them said:

"We came back to get the $25 the papers said we got when we called last week."

This time they fled with $10.19.

At an Everett square cosmetic store two bandits forced Miss Benedette M. Fodak into a cellar and fled with $35 during the evening rush hour.

In Dorchester Elliott Stone, of Capen street, Dorchester, was robbed of $14 when two passengers who had engaged his cab held him up at gunpoint.

U. S. Plans Naval Parade Off China

Joins Britain In Move to Challenge Action of Japan In Far East

By ROBERT G. NIXON
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1938)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—The world's two greatest naval powers—the United States and Great Britain—today determined upon a course of joint action in the Far East if a war is forced upon either nation by Japan's unchecked aggression in China.

The two English-speaking powers will stage a joint naval demonstration at Singapore, Britain's new "Gibraltar" of the Far East, during the second week in February.

Of far-reaching significance, the parade of naval might is considered a direct challenge to Japan to tread warily henceforth where American and British rights in China are concerned.

In a surprise move which had the personal approval of President Roosevelt, the Navy Department late yesterday ordered a squadron of light cruisers—the Trenton, Milwaukee and Memphis—to participate in British naval exercises at Singapore February 14.

FRANCE JOINS MOVE

It is understood France's Asiatic fleet also will participate. Dutch warships from the Netherlands East Indies have been invited.

Thus a four-power front of nations vitally interested in the Far East will be assembled as a firm reminder to Japan that she has gone far enough in her imperialistic designs in the Far East.

The significance of the decision of the two great powers to join in a Far Eastern naval demonstration is of utmost fundamental importance, International News Service learned.

It comes at a time when Japan has been making definite, deliberate steps to take over control of the International Settlement at Shanghai, an area set aside by China for the express use of foreign treaty powers, a foreign city in effect in which Japan has no more rights than the United States, Britain or France—and at a time when Japan, through its drive at Canton, threatens to wipe out economically Britain's stronghold at Hongkong and France's routes into South China through Indo-China.

OPPOSE AGGRESSION

The naval might on display at Singapore will not be great in comparison to the Japanese navy, the third largest afloat.

The deep significance lies, according to competent foreign authorities here, in the demonstration of a willingness on the part of the United States, Great Britain and perhaps France and the Netherlands, to co-operate in opposing any aggressive move by Japan.

It is the first tangible evidence of joint Anglo-American co-operation since Japan began its military dismemberment of China.

Half Million Troops See-Saw In Battle Along Tsining Canal

SHANGHAI, Jan. 14 (AP)—A half million Chinese and Japanese troops fought along the ancient grand canal tonight in a see-saw battle to determine the fate of Central China.

Spurred by the presence of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and a shakeup in parts of the army's command, Chinese troops counter-attacked across the frozen canal in an attempt to recapture town of Tsining, which changed hands a half dozen times in costly engagements.

Chiang ordered his chief of staff, General Ho Ying-Chin, to Suchow, the junction of China's main east-west railroad, the Lunghai, and the Tientsin-Pukow line, where General Li Tsung-Jen, Kwangsi province warlord, directed defenses.

Until the outbreak of Chinese-Japanese warfare Chiang had been a bitter enemy of General Li, who in 1929 was deprived of all posts for launching a defection of Kwangsi generals.

CHIANG WITH TROOPS

While Shantung General Han Fu-Chu was reported by Chinese to be under arrest, his troops—driven from Tsining—were 10 miles distant, holding the Kinsiang highway from which Japanese would be able to outflank Suchow or march against Kweiteh, ancient capital of the Chinese empire.

(At Hongkong the purpose of Chiang's tour of the front was described by authoritative sources as an attempt to stiffen the morale of retreating troops and induce the generals who had been acting independently, to work together.

(At Amsterdam, a group of high-ranking Chinese diplomats and government officials worked out details of a plan for seeking Great Britain's diplomatic and financial help against Japan.)

Near Tsining, 100 miles northwest of Suchow, Japanese tried to chop through a line of Chinese bayonets for an attack on Suchow itself and on Chengchow, the junction of the Lunghai and Peiping-Hankow railroads. Behind the lines Chinese guerrilla bands harried the Japanese.

JAPS DIG IN

Pending the outcome of the Tsining battle, the main Japanese column advancing southward along the Tsinpu dug in at Tsowhsien, 25 miles to the east.

The Japanese column pushing north from Nanking was said to be too weak to attack Pengpo, 90 miles south of Suchow.

Await Peace Move Through Nazi Envoy

TOKYO, Jan. 14 (AP)—The German ambassador, Dr. Herbert von Dirksen, through whom Japanese proposals for peace recently were reported transmitted to China, today conferred with Foreign Minister Koki Hirota.

It could not be confirmed that terms for ending the war in China were again under discussion, but Domei, the national news agency, said "important matters" were considered.

Suspended Term For Bigamist

The Gordion knot of George H. White's tangled marital affairs was slashed by a legal knife today when Judge Samuel J. Eisenstadt found the 38-year-old Roxbury man guilty of bigamy and a statutory charge of living with Wife No. 1 while also married to No. 2.

Six-month sentences on each charge were suspended. White agreed to pay $7 weekly toward the support of Mrs. Caroline Kozik White, formerly of Fall River, who became his second wife in 1935.

Statutory charges against Mrs. Kathryn MacDonald White, wife No. 1, were filed.

Federal officers said they had warrants to hold her for deportation hearings on charges she entered this country illegally from Prince Edward Island.

White's troubles began when Kathryn came back and ordered Caroline out of the house, police said. He declared he still loved Kathryn and that her divorce for desertion was invalid.

Wife Falls Dead At R. I. Trial

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 14 (AP)—Collapsing shortly after testifying in her separation trial in Superior court today, Mrs. Anna G. Vesey, 45, of Cranston, died of a heart attack in a witness room adjoining the courtroom.

Mrs. Vesey became ill at the counsel table after leaving the stand and was assisted to the witness room by her counsel. It was not realized at the time how serious her condition was, and after she was taken out of the courtroom her husband, Philip F. Vesey, a Telephone company employe, took the stand. On his way out of the courthouse he passed the witness room, unaware that his wife was dying.

The couple had been married 22 years and separated about two weeks ago. They had no children.

French Ask Delay In League Meeting

GENEVA, Jan. 14 (AP)—The French government today created a stir in League of Nations circles by asking that the League council session set for January 17 be postponed to January 26.

Some League officials expressed belief this action might indicate a desire to reconsider France's fundamental position concerning the League and might not be due primarily to the cabinet crisis in Paris.

Crisis Rocks France; Le Brun Hunt for Premier Is Vain

tional defense, leaving the President's palace after a two-hour conference, said he had declined Le-Brun's invitation to form a cabinet.

The President worked against time in an effort to establish a new government before political passions aggravated the labor strife and the decline of the franc which precipitated the crisis.

CALL TRACTION STRIKE

While he was consulting party leaders street car and bus employes of Lille voted a general strike to protest against discharge of 92 workers and insufficient wage increases.

Metal workers at Lille already had voted to demand higher wages. Other strikes or labor disputes were in progress in Paris suburbs, Nimes, Valenciennes and the Metz region.

To cope with the fall of the franc—which yesterday reached 30.20 to the dollar in unofficial sales—the Bank of France ordered all dealings in foreign currencies suspended "until further notice." However, retiring Finance Minister Georges Bonnet, who, like the other ministers, remained in office pending formation of the new cabinet, permitted the Bourse to open "as usual."

Chautemps resigned early today after a bitter verbal exchange with his Communist allies in the Chamber of Deputies and after Socialist members of his cabinet had withdrawn.

FRONT TALKS PEACE

Signs the breach in the People's Front might be healed developed today. The executive committee of the Communist party published a statement calling on Communists, Socialists and Radical-Socialists to reunite and create a new People's Front Government. The statement said "this now is more than ever necessary."

U. S., in French Money Pact, Studies Crisis

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP)—French efforts to halt the decline of the franc received the close attention today of American fiscal officials interested in keeping the whole system of international exchange on a stable level.

Ever since abandonment by most nations of fixed gold ratios which kept the various currencies in tune with each other, world powers have resorted to the pledged word and huge secret funds to maintain parities.

France, England and the United States are banded in their "tripartite declaration" for currency stabilization, joined by Belgium, Holland and Switzerland.

As long, however, as the franc skids, France's status in this agreement becomes questionable and the whole system is at least temporarily out of joint.

5 Chinese Gangsters Captured in Battle

SHANGHAI, Jan. 14 (AP)—Police captured five barricaded Chinese gangsters and their hideout tonight after a three-hour gun battle in the residential section of the International Settlement.

Two hundred British and Chinese constables of the Shanghai municipal police attacked the besieged gangsters with rifles and tear gas after a shot from the hideout had wounded a British policeman. A Chinese constable and a Chinese woman bystander also were wounded.

THE YELLOW TYPHOON and RED STORM WARNINGS

EXCLUSIVE!

The Chinese soldier said to himself "I will die for China," while the Nipponese echoed "I will kill for Japan."

And therein lies the reason for China's collapse at the hands of invading Japanese, according to H. R. Knickerbocker, noted foreign correspondent of International News Service and the Boston Evening American.

Back in Paris after a 12,500-mile trip across Asia and Europe, Knickerbocker is ready to report to America the task it faces to keep clear of the conflagration raging in the Pacific.

He has written a gripping series of articles on "The Yellow Typhoon and Red Storm Warnings."

During the months he spent in Shanghai covering the bloody Sino-Japanese warfare, the Pulitzer prize-winning correspondent found that China's collapse resulted from her traditional pacifism.

"The Chinese," he said, "have believed for the last thousand years that a fighting man is the lowest class of human being. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and his remarkable wife were waking up China when Japan struck.

"But Japan did not give China time to wake up, and the Japanese soldiers who wanted to kill for Japan went over the top and killed the Chinese soldiers who were willing to die for China."

Backed by his years of experience, Knickerbocker had time in his long sojourn in China and his trip across the Eastern Hemisphere to study the eventual outcome of Japan's onslaught on supremacy of the white race.

He has reached his conclusions and drafted his sensational revelations of the war fever sweeping Europe and Asia.

They will be presented to Boston Evening American readers in a startling series of twelve articles, beginning Monday, January 17.

Seeks to Force Parade O.K.'s

A score of "blacklist" organizations today rested their hopes of future parades and assemblies on a bill filed in the Legislature by Representative Charles Miller.

The bill was brought in behalf of Miss Florence Luscomb and the council of White Collar and Professional Unions of Greater Boston.

It provides that permits must be issued for parades and public meetings, unless it can be shown they are in conflict with public conveniences.

False Teeth Wearers Are Worst Breath Offenders!

"Need More Than a Mouth Wash" say Authorities ... Recommend Polident

Plates and bridges soak up odors and impurities like a sponge! A thin dark scum collects on them. This scum holds germs and decay bacteria. It is so tough that ordinary brushing seldom removes it. And it gets into every tiny crevice where brushing can't even reach. Almost always it results in "denture breath"—probably the most offensive of all breath odors.

Yet there's a perfect way to clean and purify false teeth without brushing, acid or danger. It is Polident, the powder that dissolves away all scum, stains, tarnish and odor. Makes breath sweeter—and plates or bridges look better and feel better. Tens of thousands call Polident a blessing for comfort, convenience and hygiene. Long-lasting can costs only 30¢ at any drug store. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau and dentists everywhere.

Cleans, Purifies Like Magic

Put plate or bridge in ½ glass of water. Add a little Polident powder. Leave in 10 to 15 minutes—rinse—and it's sweet and purified—ready to use!

Recession Laid To Government By Coal Head

Guffey Act Scored As Penalizing Huge Industry

By ROBERT A. McGILL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (INS)—A blunt-spoken Pennsylvania industrialist declared before the Senate unemployment committee today that the current business recession was "created right here in Washington."

He was J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, and while offering to "cooperate" with the government in recovery measures, at the same time he called upon the New Deal to clarify its policies toward industry, and to "rectify its mistakes."

"This present depression is a matter of deep concern to the heads of every business and industrial enterprise, large and small," said Morrow. "It was not of their making or seeking. It came upon them because a spreading doubt and uncertainty as to the future dried up orders.

BLAMES GOVERNMENT

"Our company and every other will give the government every assistance to restore prosperity. But in our view this depression was created here in Washington.

"It will have to be cured here in Washington by a frank acknowledgement of some mistakes; by a clear and unequivocal statement of future policies, and by prompt executive and legislative action to dispel the doubt, and distrust that have frozen the potential purchases of millions of people in this country."

Claiming the bituminous coal industry expects greater losses of business and increased unemployment, Morrow denounced the Guffey Act as one of the chief contributing factors to the depression in the bituminous coal industry.

PRICES UP

"The average price at which bituminous coal will be sold in 1938 has been raised appreciably above the price levels prevailing in 1937. That higher level and rigidity of prices will render bituminous coal more vulnerable to competitive attack by fuel oil, natural gas, hydroelectric power, wood, anthracite and other unregulated substitutes.

"We can expect further losses of business to these fuels and further losses of employment opportunity for labor in this industry."

Roosevelt Bans Holding Firms

lieved the industry was willing to do if the government in turn did certain things.

BANS "WIND AND WATER"

As to Wilkie's contention that a large inflow of capital was needed to start an expansion program, the President said that was perfectly true of operating companies.

Turning to Wilkie's expressed willingness to utilize, for rate-making, the prudent investment valuation on properties built hereafter, the President said that was impossible.

If the reproduction cost theory, now in general use, is wrong now, he declared, it also was wrong in the past and no moral right exists to forgive past crimes and leave what he termed water and wind in the existing capital structures.

Two wrongs don't make a right, he added.

Wilkie's statement that the new valuation method also might disturb the capital market brought a comment that if a sinking fund had been set up on senior securities there would not have been any disturbance.

Regarding Wilkie's readiness to eliminate capital write-ups disclosed by the federal trade commission, the President said he did not know enough about that to give an intelligent answer but here again differentiation should be made between operating and holding companies.

AVOIDING DUPLICATION

As to proposals that the federal government avoid duplication of private utilities, the President recalled a prior statement of his that the government now was operating power plants at a ratio of only about 10 per cent of the total power, area and population.

He added that in the Columbia basin and other regions the administration was trying to arrange for municipalities desiring power to avoid duplication of facilities.

The government recognizes the right of municipalities to put in their own power plants if the voters so determine, he said, adding that Wilkie even concedes that point.

On the point of public works grants to municipalities to establish power plants, he said the Supreme Court had made clear there was not much difference between federal aid for highways and federal aid for power.

Laud Boston American Price Raise

LOUIS LEVENTHAL — ROBERT WATT — WILLIAM GREEN

Roosevelt Asks Relief Funds

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—President Roosevelt has decided tentatively to ask Congress for a special deficiency appropriation of between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000 for unemployment relief, it was learned today.

A special message on relief will shortly be sent to Capitol Hill. According to White House sources it will stress these points:

1—The recent jobless census showed approximately 11,000,000 unemployed; recent lay-offs have increased this figure.

2—The peak relief load will be reached in February, with some 2,000,000 on the rolls; it will taper off in March and spring months as a definite business upturn becomes evident.

3—Present funds will be sufficient to meet relief demands through February and March, but additional funds will be required for the last quarter of the fiscal year.—April, May and June.

4—All jobless who can work can obtain employment on Federal relief projects; individual relief checks must be shaved as the number on relief grows, and part of the relief funds, probably $25,000,000, must be distributed among poverty-stricken farmers, particularly tenant farmers.

Theatrical Club's Charter Is Revoked

Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook today revoked the charter of the Theatrical Club, a night club in Warrenton street, a few doors in from Tremont. Cook said his action was taken as a result of conviction of the club for violating the state Liquor Control Act.

Boston Mailers' Union No. 16 today announced its unanimous endorsement of the Boston Evening American price of three cents.

A letter signed by Stephen J. Howard, chairman, and William J. Upton, secretary of the Boston American Chapel of the union was sent to John T. Lambert, associate publisher of the Evening American as follows:

"We take great pleasure in informing you that at a regular meeting of this Union Tuesday, January 11, the Boston American Chapel reported the following resolution: 'That this Chapel cooperate and endorse the action of the Boston American in raising the price of the paper to three cents.'

"The Union unanimously endorsed the action of the Chapel."

Senator Hurls '60 Families'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP).—Senator Bailey (D.) of North Carolina called Secretary Ickes a "renegade Republican" today in the Southern filibuster against the antilynching bill.

Bailey warned the Senate then to disown Ferdinand Lundberg's book, "America's 60 Families," which he asserted had been "the inspiration" for Ickes' recent attacks on "big business."

"There is one paragraph in this book," Bailey said, "that says frequent washing of hands has always been a mark of a subconscious feeling of guilt and that by the same token frequent bathing indicates a subconscious feeling of guilt."

peace was one of them and spreading employment was another.

The previous discussions to which Lewis referred have been held intermittently in New York, where all except Lewis reside.

They were initiated a short time ago by Berle, Taussig and Rexford G. Tugwell, who left government service about a year ago to join Taussig in the molasses company.

Taussig, Berle and Tugwell were prominent in the earlier stages of the New Deal and were of that group that Washington came to call "brain trusters." All are now out of government service.

Tugwell was not present at today's conference, which was held in the White House proper instead of in the executive offices.

The White House had no comment to make on the meeting.

DeMille to Give Talk at Harvard

Producer-Director Plans Description Of 25 Years of Movie Making

By ANN MARSTERS

Cecil B. DeMille, Hollywood's famous producer-director, has accepted an invitation from the Harvard Film Society to speak in the New Lecture Hall at Harvard University next Tuesday evening.

The invitation comes as a distinct honor to DeMille and a recognition of his importance and influence in the movie industry.

SUBJECT OF TALK

DeMille, who arrives in Boston Tuesday for the premiere of his latest production, "The Buccaneer," will speak on "My Twenty-five Years in the Movies."

As a pioneer of the film industry, DeMille played a forceful part in the founding of Hollywood itself. And, 23 years ago, he produced and directed the first feature-length film ever made. He was really the "father" of the big spectacular motion picture, and attracted world-wide attention with his religious spectacles, "King of Kings," "Ten Commandments" and "Sign of the Cross."

DISCOVERED TALENT

During the early days of the movies, DeMille became noted for his uncanny ability to discover talent. And among his first discoveries were Gloria Swanson, Wallace Reid, Bebe Daniels, Thomas Meighan and Leatrice Joy.

The Harvard Film Society, founded in 1936, is headed by T. Edward Ross, II, Harvard senior, and sponsored by distinguished faculty members, the Boston Museum of Modern Art, Fogg Museum, Harvard Dramatic Club and Harvard Film Service. Tickets may be purchased by the public as well as by members of the university.

Thieves Loot Three Poor Boxes in Vain

FALL RIVER, Jan. 14—Poor boxes in St. Anne's, St. Louis and Espirito Santo churches were ripped open during the night by thieves who had forced windows.

No money was obtained in any of the breaks as pastors of all churches have made a practice of emptying poor boxes nightly since church breaks in New Bedford. The altar rail at the Espirito Santo church was damaged when the thieves apparently broke the poor boxes open across it.

The Brighter Side

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

By DAMON RUNYON

Damon Runyon

Mr. Stewart Crowell, of Rahway, N. J., a self-confessed omnivorous reader of this tower of enlightenment, wants to know the origin of the expression "behind the eight ball."

Well, Mr. Crowell, sir, we are always ready to oblige the cash customers, but in this instance we are not sure of our ground. We merely know the state of being behind the eight ball. Indeed, we have sometimes felt that our permanent address was behind the eight ball.

Only recently we got ourself behind the eight ball to some extent by attempting an explanation of the term "cracker" as applied to natives of some of the Southern states. We reached back to the whip cracking days of the ox teams for that one, though we added that several founts of wisdom thought it came from the practice of the Southerners sitting around cracker barrels at the corner grocery store.

OUT OF LUCK TWIST

A little more reflection on our part would have produced the quite reasonable explanation that is now brought to our attention by Mr. Louis Engel of Brookline. He says people living in the territory of the Creek Nation of Georgia, or occupying the lands soon after the Indians were removed, were called "Creekers," which in time became "crackers."

We had heard that before, but overlooked it when we got to glibly offering explanations, and we thank Mr. Engel for bringing it to mind.

But now about the eight ball. To be behind the eight ball means, in a general way, to be out of luck. There is a noble indoor pastime now politely known as pocket billiards, that out in Pueblo, Colorado, we called pool and in one form of this pastime a ball numbered eight is invariably black.

We have heard it said that some thoughtful soul associated the black eight ball with that little symbol of disfavor permitted in secret orders, and clubs, when a candidate for membership is being balloted on. Sometimes a ballot comes out looking like a dish of caviar, hence, some claim, the origin of the expression behind the eight ball, or the black ball.

ASSOCIATED WITH POOL

We do not care for this explanation. It lacks logic, and coherence. We are inclined to think that the expression was born directly of the game of pocket billiards, or pool. The owners of billiard academies, and the manufacturers of the appurtenances thereto disapprove of the term pool, because the academies came to be called pool rooms, and the owners and manufacturers felt that this associated their establishments in the public mind with race track pool rooms.

Their establishments are still generally called pool rooms by many, of course, but you cannot educate the public to something new all at once. Anyway, we favor the explanation of the origin of the expression behind the eight ball of a man who once told us that it started in Jack Doyle's old place in 42d street, when that street was the heart of the world.

A fellow was playing a game of rotation pool one night, and this diversion requires that the player knock the balls into the pockets in numerical order—1 to 15.

TOUGH LUCK MEANING

It so happened that several times in succession, when it came this fellow's shot, he found his cue ball stymied, or blocked off, by the black eight ball, so he could not get a crack at the target ball. It was a sequence of tough luck that caused another player to remark:

"That guy's always behind the eight ball."

Thus a new expression crept into our public speech as meaning tough luck. Finally it came to mean any unpleasant predicament. The expression must have been in use in this connection for at least 25 years, because it is almost that long since Jack Doyle's was in Forty-second street.

"TAD" USED EXPRESSION

Afterwards Doyle moved his establishment around into Broadway, where he flourished until quite recently, when he announced his retirement from business. "Tad," the great cartoonist, often used the expression back down the years. It is our conjecture that it was "Tad" who familiarized it with the public.

As a current illustrator of the naming of the expression, business is now behind the eight ball. That is, most business. In fact, so much business is behind the eight ball that there is some overcrowding back there that warrants attention.

It has been announced that future applicants for space behind the eight ball will have to wait in behind some other ball for a spell.

Dinner at Burrage Home Honors Mr. and Mrs. Harold I. Chalifoux

By BETTY ALDEN

IT IS RATHER UNUSUAL to hear of a great grandmother giving a society party . . . yet the most important parties of Boston's distinguished Burrage family are given by Mrs. Albert Cameron Burrage at her home on Commonwealth avenue . . .

Mrs. Burrage is the great grandmother of Mr. and Mrs. Forrester A. Clarks' youngsters . . . yet, though she is a member of that select group of older Back Bayites who do much to maintain Boston's preeminence in the social and cultural worlds, one would hardly think of her as a great grandmother . . .

Mary Melville Clow

She is actively interested in a great many charitable and garden club affairs . . . she still pursues the hobby which she and the late Mr. Burrage made popular among Boston socialites, the growing of rare orchids . . . in the greenhouses on her summer estate in Manchester . . . In addition to all this she takes a keen interest in the activities of her sons, daughters and grandchildren . . . and every now and then gives a party to help them celebrate the special occasions in their lives . . .

Quite a bit smaller than many of the affairs which have been held in her beautiful Commonwealth avenue home, but equally as much fun will be the party which Mrs. Burrage is giving tomorrow evening for her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Harold I. Chalifoux (Elizabeth A. Burrage) of Beverly . . .

Thirty-six friends have been invited to this get-together which is to be sort of a bon voyage party for Mrs. Chalifoux, who is sailing early next week to spend about four months in Europe . . .

The affair will be a dinner followed by dancing, and among the guests will be quite a few of the North Shore neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Chalifoux, as well as some of their friends who live in town . . .

Plans Debut Next October

AMONG THE GUESTS will be Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Pingree, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Batchelder, Jr., of Beverly, Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Sears, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Huntington L. Hardwick, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Mixter, Mr. and Mrs. Kingsbury Browne, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hornblower, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Weeks, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner H. Fiske and Mr. and Mrs. Forrester A. Clark (Katherine Burrage) . . .

Mrs. Chalifoux will meet her daughter, Betsy, in St. Moritz, Switzerland, later this month . . . Betsy, who went abroad earlier in the winter with Miss Stout's Travel School, is spending part of this month in Italy and has written very enthusiastic letters to her parents describing her novel Christmas celebration in Rome . . . She will make her debut next October at a party given by her parents at Willowbank, their Beverly home . . .

Mrs. Chalifoux is chairman of the ladies' board of the Boston Lying-In Hospital which is sponsoring a lecture next Wednesday, at the Statler, to benefit the social service department of the hospital . . . Byron D. MacDonald of New York will speak on Dalmatia and the Greek Islands on that occasion, and many prominent socialites are serving as patronesses . . .

Braggiotti-Clow Ceremony Tomorrow

IF THE MANIFOLD ACTIVITIES of that most unusual family, the Braggiottis, have ever intrigued you, you will be interested in the wedding tomorrow of Mario, one of the elder brothers, to Mary Melville Clow of Chicago . . .

Mario, who is a partner of the piano playing team, Fray and Braggiotti, has chosen a girl whom everyone thinks is a "perfect match" for him . . . for not only is "Baby," as she is called, an intimate friend of Gloria Braggiotti, Mario's sister, but she and Mario have many friends in common, as well as a mutual interest in the arts and a flair for doing things in an amusing and different way . . .

Baby, (she was christened Francise, but changed her name two years ago because of confusion with other Frances Clows in the family), is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Clow of Lake Forest, Illinois, where tomorrow's ceremony will be performed . . . and knowing her flair for individuality everyone expects something entirely new and outstanding in the way of weddings . . .

With the exception of Mr. and Mrs. John David Lodge (Francesca Braggiotti) of Boston, who are now in London, and Dorillio, the youngest Braggiotti, who has a job in Palm Beach and can't get away, the family circle will be complete at the wedding tomorrow . . .

Flying to Chicago for Wedding

THE RAMA BRAGGIOTTIS (Elizabeth Stephenson), and Mr. and Mrs. Sebastiano Braggiotti of Brookline are all in Chicago, and Gloria, who is a fashion editor in New York, has left her desk for the week-end and is flying to Chicago today in time to attend the bridal dinner party which Mrs. Howard Linn is giving this evening . . .

Since Fray and Braggiotti have made professional appearances in Chicago this week, "Baby" and Mario have had to forfeit most of their pre-wedding parties, except for informal get-togethers after the concerts . . . However, today was reserved for entertaining and the Kent Clows gave a large luncheon in addition to Mrs. Linn's dinner . . .

Mrs. Lloyd Laflin, sister of the bride, will be matron of honor at the wedding and Gloria Braggiotti will take her place in the bridal procession as maid of honor . . . Edward Briggs of Brookline, a close friend of Mario's, will be best man . . .

"Baby" expressed her individualism at an early age . . . refused to have a coming out party and follow the conventional social pattern of a girl in her walk of life . . . studied languages and art in Munich and wrote of her travels in Bavaria for a Chicago paper . . . She follows the theater and the arts and most of her friends are authors, actors, painters and designers . . . those who are part and parcel of a world far more picturesque and adventurous than the conservative social background of her family

All in all the bride-to-be sounds as if she will be very congenial with the renowned American family whose members were born under the flags of five nations, and whose name she will bear after tomorrow . . .

Society Skiers Go North for Week-End

200 Leave Tomorrow For Plymouth, N. H., Program

Part of the fun of skiing is evidently the trip to and from the mountains.

Though there is certainly enough snow on our local slopes, roads and even sidewalks, to satisfy the most enthusiastic winter sports lover, a group of almost two hundred socialites, recruited from the members of the Alteburgers and the Hochgebirges skiing clubs, will take a special train from North Station at 12:30 tomorrow afternoon for Plymouth, N. H., where they will spend the week-end.

Among those who will spend this evening getting their togs, harness, wax, goggles, and other skiing paraphernalia ready for the trip are Mr. and Mrs. Amor Hollingsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Quincy A. Howard, Robert Livermore, Jr., Betty Dumaine, Alice Graves, Kitty Talbot, Joanne Baw, James T. Baldwin, Peggy Porter, George W. Gibson, Zabdiel Boylston Adams, Jr., John D. W. Morrill and Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Guild.

Philo Vance Mystery Role for Gracie Allen

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor International News Service

Copyright, 1938, by International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 14—A unique assignment is the one just handed S. S. Van Dine, creator of Philo Vance and author of dozens of thrilling murder mysteries.

Van Dine, a former Los Angeles newspaper man, whose real name is Willard Huntington Wright, has been engaged to write "The Gracie Allen Murder Mystery." He will do it in New York, bringing the "thank ya" girl in as the heroine.

Louella O. Parsons

I don't know how Van Dine is on comedy, but if he furnishes the harrowing plot, George Burns, who is an expert at dialogue, can fill in the gaps with his own humor. Won't it be something to see our favorite screen and radio Dumb Dora mixed up in a murder case? Lewis Gensler, the producer, has promised us, however, that they won't murder Gracie—we just couldn't bear it.

Don't be too surprised if David Selznick and Marlene Dietrich make another picture. He did very well with her in "Garden of Allah" and I happen to know that there has been a lot of conversation concerning the very attractive Marlene. If she and young Mr. Selznick get together on a deal I hope to see a complete reversal of the former heavy dramas in which La Dietrich played languorous heroines with little or no animation.

She will do a comedy—something on the order of Carole Lombard's "Nothing Sacred." Joseph Von Sternberg is also interested in having Marlene star in Emile Zola's "Germinal," but her friends all hope she will do the Selznick comedy first.

Chatter in Hollywood: Denials notwithstanding, Parsons Junior insists her story on the air that Lana Turner and Don Barry were actually married in Mexico New Year's Eve is true. Young Miss Turner, Mr. Barry and her mother deny it vociferously, but in spite of their denials one of her close friends insists the marriage took place. So maybe Parsons Junior is right and her ma is wrong. I often am. At any rate there is a deal of discussion in the town whether or not Miss Turner is Mrs. Barry.

A line or two: Here's a tip for Hollywood producers. Don't miss little Peter Behn in the Pete Smith short, "Jungle Juveniles." There's not one baby in a million who would have been so completely unafraid working with the animals, but "Pete" had the situation well in hand. No wonder his grandmother, our own Florence Lawrence, is so proud of him . . . Speaking of the jungle, MGM has just handed Johnny Weissmuller a new seven-year contract without options, which proves Johnny is still doing all right with the animals, too.

If you think the stars aren't superstitious you should have seen the army of agents and secretaries who showed up at the automobile license bureau demanding "lucky" numbers . . . Nice to hear that Florence Ryerson and Edgar Allan Woolf, who have written so many [illegible], have turned out a hit for MGM with their musical, "Everybody Sing."

Snapshots of Hollywood

The official name of the BING CROSBY baby is LINDSAY, named for HOWARD LINDSAY, the writer . . . PAULETTE GODDARD in a party at a night spot with FLORENCE RICE, PAT DE CICCO and that young man who resembles HOWARD HUGHES—if it wasn't HUGHES himself; BARBARA O'NEIL, at one time rumored engaged to HOWARD HUGHES and the girl who played JOHN BOLES' second wife in "Stella Dallas," [illegible] LORETTA YOUNG will be in JOCK WHITNEY'S party at the "In Old Chicago" premiere. WILLIE WYLER has invited JOAN CASTLE to be his guest.

The BUSTER COLLIERS sail January 29 for Hollywood and all their friends are eager to see the baby. A. C. BLUMENTHAL leaves for the east next week and no one will be surprised if he obtains his divorce from PEGGY FEARS . . . JUNE LANG gets her final decree the first of August at which time she will marry the wealthy New Yorker . . . CLIFFORD ODETS' birthday present to LOUISE RAINER some unusual etchings; FRED KOHLMAR off for New York to do some GOLDWYN talent scouting. That's all for today. See you tomorrow.

"HOLLYWOOD HOTEL," with Louella Parsons, Benny Goodman and his orchestra, Dick Powell and Frances Langford opens Thursday, January 20, on the screen of the Metropolitan Theater.

"because I don't think you'd do it. But I'm not particularly proud of coming here, and I don't know there's any reason for me to talk about it."

"Now," said Big Gus, "you're talkin' sense."

"I'm glad you think so," said Sheila. "Because perhaps you'll be able to see I'm talking sense when I say that a good deal depends on what you do about my brother."

"So that's the angle!" Big Gus leaned back in his chair and puffed long and vigorously. "Okay," he said suddenly. "That suits me." He reached into his desk, pulled out a paper lying on top. "Here's a manager-boxer contract I signed with your brother tonight. Here it goes." And he ripped the paper in two.

SHEILA breathed a sigh of relief. But she had one more question.

"Where is he now?"

Big Gus grinned wryly.

"Got to have it all, huh? All right, he's waitin' at a certain hotel for me to call him. I was gonna use him on a little angle tonight. But that's all off. I'll send him on home."

"And you'll let him alone in the future?"

"As long as you shoot square." The racket boss made a gesture of contempt. "What's one loogan more or less to me?" He straightened up in his chair, rose to his feet. "All right?" He pressed a wall fixture; the door into the hall slid open. "Your cab's around the corner on Broadway, girlie. Take my advice. Climb in it and go home."

As Sheila started toward the street door he stopped her with an imperious "Wait."

"Yes," she said, escape the only thought in her mind.

"Take it easy," he advised. "Don't look like you was in a hurry when you go out. And another thing. You think I'm a hard gee. Okey, let it go at that. But don't forget you're goin' out the same way you come in. And you know why? On account of I ain't so hard. Like I told you—I got a weak spot for nice, sweet frails like you, girlie. Only" —and his tone was suddenly [illegible] with hard-held passion— "[illegible] you never [illegible] me on the spot by comin' back here again!"

When the street door opened silently for Sheila, she could see him still standing there, looking after her. The radio was crooning another sentimental song and she could imagine the stunted man smiling over the dials.

"Go back there?" she breathed, as she hurried away from that sinister door and place. "As if I ever would!"

And riding back to the shelter of South Boston and home she wondered again at the monumental egotism of that warning. Go back there? Never! Incredible—that time would come when she would.

THE wooden stairs of the Ninth street house never felt better than when Sheila, after telling the cab driver goodnight, hurried up them. With trembling hand, she felt for the door-knob, rejoicing in the familiar smoothness of the worn metal.

A light in the living room told her someone was up. It was Del, sleepy-eyed in lounging robe and pajamas.

"Eer-heu!" she yawned. "Where on earth have you been? I know you weren't at the game with Jerry, because he's been burning up the wires all night. And you can't have been with your

Fortune Smiles On Trio

The Boston Evening American's $5 awards for circled photographs in the picture pages of the serial, "When a Cabot Loves a Kelly," were presented to three more fortunate readers yesterday.

The three, members of a crowd of onlookers which witnessed the arrest of Brad Talton by Officer Hemsworth of Back Bay station on Massachusetts avenue near Huntington, came to the Boston American office and proved their identities.

Charles Orcutt, 42 Hancock street, Somerville.

Edward H. Farrell, 22 Holmes street, Malden.

Read This First --- Then Go On With the Story

GAY, young, beautiful — that's Sheila Kelly when this story opens. Heart-free, too, except for Attorney Jerry O'Donovan, former B. C. football star, whom she vaguely thinks of as her future husband. But Sheila's glad to have a temporary job at the State House, so she can contribute to the support of her family—Barney, her father, injured in the police strike, Patsy, her pleasure-loving 16-year-old sister; and her mother. She shares her father's ambitions, too, for her brother, Mickey. But Mickey would rather be a pugilist than a lawyer.

In protecting Patsy from the consequences of a "pickup date," Sheila meets Bradford Cabot Talton, Harvard student, and scion of an old and wealthy Beacon street family. Brad seeks to make an easy conquest. But Sheila turns him down cold. Not, however, before Jerry has seen them together.

Though she doesn't know it, Sheila has also attracted the interest of Big Gus Mornick, boss of the Boston rackets, who wants a secret report on racketeering she has transcribed. He assigns one of his torpedoes, Greefy Koopman, to shadow her, but Greefy's methods are crude, and he only gets a beating up from Jerry.

Meanwhile, the Kelly home acquires two non-paying guests—Delphine Barton, Sheila's older sister, and Delphine's small son, Timmy. Del has parted from her husband, Vincent Barton, of Jamaica Plain. Vince can croon like Bing Crosby, but has a weak spot for blondes and bookies.

Sheila accidentally meets Brad again when she goes to the Boston Arena to stop Mickey from fighting in defiance of his father's orders. With Brad are his sister, the wealthy Mrs. Trudy Wendell of Dover; his Harvard room-mate, Whit Prentiss, and Whit's cousin, Jane Prentiss, society debutante, who likes Brad.

"Big Gus," also sitting ringside, admires Mickey's glove-work, and tries to sign him for his boxing-stable. Aided by Brad, Sheila balks this temporarily. At the Towne Club after the fights, Brad asks Sheila to the coming Harvard-Dartmouth game. She goes after Jerry breaks a date to take her to the B. C.-Detroit game. Later she and Brad go to Trudy's Dover mansion.

Angry at Jerry, moved by Brad's professions of sincere love, Sheila permits a kiss, "just one." They are interrupted by Jane, who has become interested in Mickey. She says she has left him at a downtown night club with Mornick.

Driving to the club with Sheila, Brad is arrested for speeding, and Sheila continues alone. Arriving as Mornick is leaving, she follows the racketeer to his South End "crime castle." Thinking Mickey is with him, she enters.

She now recognizes Big Gus as the powerful "Z-11" of the racket report she has typed—and finds she is a prisoner. Aided by a radio crooner, whose voice stirs Gus's better nature, she halts the racketeer's clumsy lovemaking. He prepares to free her, but threatens injury to her family if she "talks."

Harvard admirer because he seems to be be in jail. So come on and 'fess up. I told Mom I'd wait up for you but I expect to be rewarded."

"Give me a minute," said Sheila, sinking down on the davenport. She crossed one shapely leg over the other, stripped off her slippers. "Whew! That's glorious."

"I see," said Del sharply, "that you've darned holes in both your stockings. You must have been having a good time [illegible] My! I thought it was Patsy had all the [illegible] family. And here's my [illegible] out. It was time I came home."

"Oh, Del. The most exciting thing! I was listening in on a radio program from Hollywood, and there was a crooner that sounded exactly like Vince! Honestly I'm sure it was."

Sheila [illegible].

"To the life," said Sheila. "Oh I'm sure it was Vince now."

"WELL," said Del, "you don't surprise me. What name was he using? . . . Morgan Stout? . . . You see? Oh, it's my little Vince all right."

"What will you do?"

"I don't know. I'll have to wait till I'm sure." Del sniffed. "The trouble is I like him so darned much. Oh, Sheila, don't ever go and let yourself fall in love with a worthless man!" She sniffed again. Then straightened up, wiping Vince out of her eyes with the sleeve of her lounge-robe. "But that reminds me, dear. Jerry left a number for you to call. And a policeman phoned to say your Talton friend couldn't meet you, that they were holding him without bail. What did he do—murder somebody? I always said you couldn't trust these Harvard men! Give me a Southie boy any time."

"No," said Sheila. "He was just driving without a license." She hesitated, wondering whether she should call Jerry. And was there anything at all, she could do about Brad?

Then there was a resolute rap at the door. Mickey, she thought. But Mickey wouldn't knock.

"I'll answer it," said Del. "It's probably a policeman. Once again what have you been doing?"

As she started toward the door a small voice called commandingly from the stairs.

"Mommy!"

"Oh," said Del. "Timmy's up. Yes darling. Mommy's coming."

"Mommy! Somebody's knocking. Is it Daddy?"

"No," said Del. [illegible] "Let's toddle back to bed, mother's lamb." On the stairs [illegible] If that was Vince [illegible] she said grimly to Sheila, "he's going to hear plenty of static."

Then . . . another knock [illegible] . . . it's Jerry saying [illegible] Are you going to let me in or do I have to [illegible] down?"

[illegible] And [illegible] Timmy.

But [illegible] hurt and anger— [illegible] the heart in fact was a [illegible] And after all, a good [illegible] had happened since then . . . Brad's arms [illegible] . . . Brad's kisses . . . whispering tenderly, "But I love you." Somehow she couldn't blame Jerry.

"I was just going to call you," she said. Then noticing that she'd forgotten to put her slippers back on, she giggled, and sat down on the davenport, hiding her small feet under it.

"That's right," said Jerry. "Laugh! Drive a man wild and then laugh about it!"

"But Jerry," said Sheila. "I wasn't laughing at that. And—after all it's your own fault. I waited for you until a quarter of one. Then Brad came along"—

"Sure," said Jerry, mocking her. "Brad came along!" He plopped down on the davenport beside her, the springs creaking under his solid weight of hard muscle, heavy bone, and virile flesh. He faced her. "You don't need to tell me about that. You went to the Harvard game, and then you went out to the Wendell place at Dover. I checked you that far by the use of a little logic and few phone calls. But where have you been since?"

"Gracious!" said Sheila. "Anybody would think I was on the witness stand." It struck her that Jerry was proceeding on the theory that the best defense was a good offense. Well, two could do that.

"Suppose you tell me where you were when you were supposed to meet me on Park street to take me to the B. C. game."

"Oh, I can tell you quick enough!" said Jerry, savagely. "I was busy keeping a poor old widow woman named O'Meara from being evicted from her little home in Somerville by a blackguard of a mortgage-holder named Cabot Talton! And I hope you get the name Cabot Talton." He said it between his teeth.

"I don't believe it," said Sheila. "You're making that up!"

"Oh, I am, am I?" Jerry dived into his coat [illegible] Cords and [illegible] trees?"

[illegible] Sheila. "I don't care. That's [illegible] standing [illegible] And I went the first time [illegible]" "That [illegible] she [illegible] put out of her [illegible]"

"A[illegible]," said Jerry O'Donovan, [illegible] more [illegible] But she wasn't. [illegible] would have [illegible] three [illegible] Cabot. Understand?" Jerry added, "I wouldn't have [illegible] Talton if it had been an ordinary case. Business is business, and a man's entitled to legitimate interest on an investment. But there's such a thing as [illegible] in a heartless way, and [illegible] like a human being. And [illegible]"

"O[illegible] Brad's fault. He [illegible] for what his father does. And it doesn't make me [illegible] to say [illegible]

[illegible]

Sheila felt a quick pang of alarm.

"Jerry! What do you mean? You don't think"—

Jerry gazed past her [illegible] He got up and [illegible] over her, big [illegible] indomitable.

"Never mind what I think. It's not important. When you're in love with anybody like I am with you there's some things you don't think. You know. Like"—and he was looking past her again in a way that gave her a queer, eerie shudder . . . "like I know you were in danger tonight. Just as sure as I'm standing here. And there was nothing I could do—just because I was a few minutes late, and you'd run off like a wild thing before I got there with your Mr. Bradford Cabot Talton!"

"A FEW minutes!" cried Sheila. "It was half an hour!" Yet she was fearful of what Jerry was going to say next.

"All right," he said, "a half hour." He stood for a moment, thinking. Then he said it. "Sheila, it's easy enough keeping dates if you've nothing else to do—if you're an idler on somebody else's money. But you know all about me. You know I'm no playboy. There's no inherited wealth in my family. All that I'm going to be I've got to make myself. And, believe me"—his tone was low and absolutely earnest—"I'm going to be somebody. But can't you see, Sheila—that means I've got to be a man, not a damn gigolo!"

"Brad Talton isn't a gigolo!" exclaimed Sheila. She was tired, and nervous [illegible] it seemed to her that Jerry was taking a pretty high hand. "And, if be[illegible] you can't be relied on [illegible] say you will"—

"[illegible]," said Jerry O'Donovan. [illegible] and was standing [illegible] hesitated, gazing at her [illegible] for words.

"I don't know," said Jerry. "I don't know what I came here to say. I just wanted to see you. And now I have . . . And I don't know yet where you were all that time, after you left Dover . . . And I guess it's none of my business . . . now."

Sheila felt a desire to tell him . . . something at least . . . so he wouldn't go away tortured by the doubt she could see in his eyes. Perhaps just to detain him.

"It might be your business," she said with a smile.

"How?" His tone was quickly furious.

"Well," said Sheila sweetly, "you're a lawyer. And at last reports, Brad was in jail."

"What's that? What are you talking about?"

Sheila explained, not mentioning Mickey. That would lead to Big Gus, and she didn't want Jerry turning his wrath in the racketeer's direction just then. She was too sure Mornick was perfectly capable of carrying out his threats.

Jerry burst into uproarious mis[illegible] laughter.

"So that's where he is? The idiot. Driving around without a license. And drinking probably, too. And I don't suppose Cabot Talton's high class lawyers would know how to take care of a sugar rap like that? Well, is that hot?"

"I don't think there's anything particularly funny about it," said Sheila, dangerously sweet. "I'd asked him to hurry, you see. And, if it interests you, I'm going to call up in about a minute, and see what I can do to get him out. Even"—as she remembered Brad's chivalrous care of her—"if I have to go to the police station!"

"YOU'LL not!" Jerry's tone was rough. "That's one thing I won't have." He stood with his hand on the door, thinking. "Oh, hell," he said, as if to himself, "he's only a kid and it's not his fault if his old man's a [illegible]. Damn [illegible] . . . I'll go down to the station and get him out myself."

Jerry to the aid of Brad! It's funny the things love does to a man. And what of Sheila? After that caveman kiss from Jerry is she going to stay so excited about Brad? Though they do say those Harvard boys have technique. Another exciting chapter unfolds tomorrow in this all-Boston serial romance of love and politics.

GIRL About TOWN

By ANN MARSTERS

A revival in some of the candy shops around town of an old-fashioned puffy kind of yellow candy, reminds us of the glorious penny candy we used to buy as a child.

Ann Marsters

Some [illegible] candy ever has or ever will taste quite as good to any of us.

Do you remember how you used to stand before the glass counter, with a penny or two [illegible] in your fist, and stare for long minutes at the tempting pieces? It was such a grave problem to decide which piece was [illegible]. There were [illegible] [illegible] jelly beans [illegible]

THIS Is LIFE

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

Robert E. Rogers

[illegible]

"Clothes may make the man but to a woman they fill in the difference between what she wants in life and what she is getting out of it.

New Hat or Facial Follows Blue Spell

"If you doubt it, notice how frequently a new hat or facial follows on the heels of a blue spell or a break with the boy friend."

A sharp answer to [illegible] was returned by another [illegible].

"Some women also dress up as a means of attack on their husbands. By spending money on clothes they somehow feel they are putting their man in the wrong. The fact that he has to pay for them, whether he wants to or not, or whether he approves of the results, gives them a deep, inner, not to say Sadistic, thrill."

But Miss Sharp, who represents the old orthodoxy, [illegible]

"Clothes," she says, in the approved language of a scientist, "besides being utilitarian (which means to cover one's nakedness) they also carry a Narcissistic and even mildly exhibitionistic connotation, and are worn to attract members of the opposite sex."

That word 'Narcissistic' is [illegible] meaning. If you remember Narcissus was the boy who fell in love [illegible]

Women Claim Men Gaze in Mirrors, Too

I suspect in this matter honors are equal, that between the sexes there is no decision, a draw, a standoff.

I suspect that at bottom both men and women dress to please themselves. I suspect also that as a corollary both sexes get a distinct kick out of new clothes. A new color or shape of hat, a new accessory such as a bag or a muffler or a new pair of gloves — there is [illegible] spirit [illegible] jazz up the [illegible] self-confidence give one the necessary pride to face a bridge table at a crowded restaurant to sell a bill of goods to a group of even to shine amongst one's fellow members of the Thanatopsis Pool and Poker Club — these are enough reasons for dressing up at all. One need look no farther.

CHAPTER 42

"I am happy to be here," her visitor confided, "and to see so many familiar faces around me. I wonder, Sir Francis," he added with a slight twinkle in his eyes, "whether you have been so kind as to remember my request."

[illegible]

"The few minutes' conversation which it is your pleasure to have with Lord Matresser, Your Majesty, [illegible] can safely be held here."

[illegible]

"If you will excuse me, Matresser, I should [illegible]"

[illegible]

"You have done a great deal of very [illegible] work for your country, Lord Matresser, without reward or recognition, the latter I understand [illegible] at your expressed wish.

"[illegible] a [illegible] merits [illegible] to which I shall not in detail allude [illegible] short, but I may say that I consider your handling of an exceedingly difficult problem to have been most masterly.

HIS MAJESTY'S REQUEST

[illegible]

"I have been given to understand that you wish now to abandon your brilliantly successful series of foreign missions and to settle down upon your estates. Is that true?"

"It was in my mind, Sir," Matresser [illegible]

"I shall beg you to reconsider that determination [illegible]

"Yours are not the type of brains to be wasted on lesser work."

"I have had no diplomatic training, Your Majesty, for the more settled posts in the international world. [illegible] and I am afraid that the anonymity, which was the chief reason for my success in some of those former enterprises, is gone."

"That is exactly what I expected you to say. [illegible]

"But it is the Empire which calls for support of such men as you, Matresser. I have marked you down for India, Matresser. That is where I think you might continue to serve your country with[illegible] into the backwaters.

"I shall not detain you longer. I must place myself in the hands of my hostess. I only wished to meet you for a few moments in private, Lord Matresser, to express to you my thanks for what you have done and my earnest hope that you will continue to serve the Empire. [illegible] Shall we find Lady Irita [illegible]

[illegible]

"If we do not meet again this evening," he said, "I hope you will think over what I have said."

THEY MEET

[illegible] was as he [illegible] had been [illegible] had come to [illegible] a yard or so away.

Matresser now was free to follow [illegible]. He [illegible] a step forward and bowed.

"I am glad to meet you, Baroness," he said. "Will you be so kind as to introduce me to your uncle? I do not remember that we have met formally."

[illegible] held out his hand. "My niece's introduction is scarcely necessary. It is perhaps fortunate as she seems to have lost her tongue," he observed smiling.

"I am very happy to meet you, Lord Matresser. If I say no more, I am convinced that you understand."

Matresser [illegible] hands as [illegible] the baron made an eager [illegible] very [illegible] who was [illegible] their direction.

"Could I presume so far as to leave my niece for a few minutes in your charge, Lord Matresser?" he begged.

"You will excuse me, Elisabeth? Our friend there has something, I know, to say to me."

"So you are willing to converse," she asked smiling, "with a murderess and a spy?"

"I have met both in my life," he assured her. She looked at his medals and he laughed.

"No, there are no important decorations yet," he admitted, "but then I am only a clumsy amateur."

"And I am not a spy at all," she declared.

"I have never accused you."

"Nevertheless," she reproached him, "you refused to take me away with you from that little nest of intrigue at Matresser."

MATRESSER EXPLAINS

"I knew quite well," he replied, "that you were not in the slightest danger. I myself was under government orders.

"It was impossible for me to take you away or let you know where I was going."

"Government orders," she repeated. "I do not understand."

"Nevertheless, I am telling you the truth," he assured her.

"That plane was sent to take me to a rendezvous in the Metzger mountains. The shooting was only an excuse."

"You must explain," she insisted. "I cannot bear any more mystery."

"Ask me anything you will," he replied.

"I know, of course, that you are an English gentleman," she said, "but will you please tell me why you were singled out for a special audience alone—you came out from that retiring room with the king—and you were treated on all sides with extraordinary consideration? What have you done in life to have earned all that?"

"Shot high pheasants with precision at Sandringham," he replied with perhaps a shade of bitterness in his tone.

She had half risen to her feet but the touch of his fingers, slight though it was, drew her back again.

"I beg your pardon," he apologized. "That was flippant and untrue but you must remember that you have already expressed your opinion of me when I asked you once a very important question."

"Was that opinion not justified?"

'Lady Esquire'

BELMO, who designs hats, has a bright idea. He's all enthused about the young modern who has an active social life as well as being a genuine career girl. So he designed a double-duty belt to pay homage to her and called it "Lady Esquire." His point is that it's quite simple enough for the plain silk frock that's her choice for the average business day, which might include anything from a staff session in the morning to a publicity pow-wow tea at the Ritz in the afternoon . . . looking equable and chic for both. Yet with its gold or silver trim, it can well bear up into the evening, its sparkle to be repeated by the bright lights around town. In suede or patent leather, and in dark or high spring colors.

PROPORTIONATE MEASUREMENTS VARY GREATLY

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Normal weight, however, varies with structure. The girl with a wide frame can weigh more than the girl of the same height with a slight frame.

As a general rule, if you have a wide frame with heavy bones, you should allow 110 pounds for five feet of height and five and one-half pounds for each additional inch. A variation of 10 per cent above or below this allowance is considered normal.

In determining symmetry, the pivotal measurements are chest, bust, waist and hips. The leaflet "Measure Your Curves" tells you exactly how to take your measurements.

While the proportionate difference between the pivotal measurements varies only slightly in most figures, the short, stocky figure will not have as great a difference between chest and bust and between bust and waist [illegible]

[illegible] type. You may be tall or short, but if your frame is very slight the basic weight for five feet may be estimated at 100 pounds with the same five and one-half pound allowance for each inch by which the height exceeds five feet.

Bon Voyage Gift

By ARLINE GOULD

BASKETS of fruit and flowers may be distributed to the stewards, but you may be sure that one little bon voyage gift bottle will stay with the traveler until the last drop of precious content is eked out—and we're not talking about Irroy Extra Dry '26, either!

A firm of French chemists has just perfected a sea water soap in liquid form that will bubble and lather with inexpressible gusto in the toughest water on land or sea. And it's put up with all the chic of the Normandie on her maiden voyage. It's as [illegible] as a French mariner on shore leave in New York. The hoity-toitiest luggage of [illegible] in [illegible], we'll not outshine the charm of the bottle.

As [illegible] strokes of genius really are, the design is exceedingly simple and straightforward. Jaffee Gesture: Etc.

A STAR IS UNBORN—Among the several reasons why Miss Maribel Vinson, distinguished lady skate scooter of Boston, has taken a sudden lammister from the Gay Blades Ice Carnival, is the payment of too much long green to Maribel and the retention of too much deep-red for Promoter Bill O'Brien. In fact there was little left except the pastry pan of Bill's box-office pie. Also there was the promoter's self-confessed failure to fit his star's emotional artistry into the ensemble, resulting in too much star and too little show. So Maribel had to take a vanishing powder, despite the fact that she may be the technical superior of all other lady scooters of this day, or since Sonja Henie relaxed competitively under Hollywood's soft persuasion.

AUSTEN LAKE

Hockey oddity—Neatest hockey trick is Canada's painless transformation of the deepest-dyed professional back to spotless amateur purity through a two-year probation. Thus, such elderly professionals as "Red" Green, the old Bruin, and other league-worn hockeyists as Harold Starr, Bill Brydge and Bill Toughey are performing above the border as qualified amateurs. Any Canadian hockey pro may shed his commercial skin by petitioning the amateur body and submitting to a two-year parole. Need I add, there is cash to comfort the salvaged pros for their chameleon change.

Whiskered walrus—Latest bearded wrestling celebrity is a [illegible] Sullivan of Ireland. And [illegible] bearded. I mean his facial foliage is five times bushier than that of Man Mountain Dean, the inventor of face fuzz as an adjunct to mat appeal. But the name Sullivan is just a nom-de-scaffold. His true name is John Maloney and his native habitat is South Boston.

Nazi "Bite"; Jaffee's Appeal

THAT'S NEWS—WHEN A MAN BITES a hamburger that's customary, but when a Hamburger bites a man that's front page with pictures. Anyhow, the promoter of the Schmeling-Foord fight in Hamburg, Germany, on January 30, is taking a $45 chew, or the Nazi equivalent, on all ringside seats. This is $5 more than the record bite put on any American fight addict—i. e., the occasion when Gene Tunney fought Jack Dempsey in

Landis Opens War on Betting

Aims to Avoid Another 'Black Sox' Scandal

[illegible] Jan 13 (INS)—[illegible] Kenesaw M. Landis [illegible] organized baseball, has launched a campaign to stamp out horse race betting among ball players, it was learned today. [illegible] a thorough investigation is in progress [illegible] betting habits [illegible] players [illegible] the major league [illegible] the [illegible] to be [illegible] men here.

The practice prevalent [illegible] most of the teams of the two major leagues received renewed attention last season with the dismissal of Rogers Hornsby as pilot of the St. Louis Browns.

By JACK CONWAY

IT IS SNOWING as I write these lines. It was also snowing when I came out of the Garden and drove by auto to Jamaica Plain following the opening of the spectacular Ice Follies featuring the brilliant Bess Ehrhardt and other super-stars.

Mr Boston

It was snowing when I looked out the window after the alarm clock punched me on the chin. I saw the snow in front of the garage doors, and decided it was too early to shovel snow. I would come in town by bus and Elevated.

The oldest of the little Bostons, who is a first year student at Boston College High, told me it was fun going to school on the bus and Elevated. As we turned the corner of the street where I live the bus was in sight, and my youthful companion told me that if we ran we would be able to catch the bus at the next stop.

We were in the center of the street at the time, and I accepted the challenge. Sure, I had run on the track team at the High School of Commerce those many years ago, and had later done some running at the Y. M. C. A Gym while studying law at Northeastern University.

But that, too, was a long time ago. The bus stop was 150 yards distance, and the snow was heavy and the ice underneath the snow slippery

I have never received a rating as a superior or even as a good snow runner. My confidence picked up when the little Boston with me fell, and I had to assist him to his feet. At least I had not fallen

We reached the bus stop on time, and waited with 20 other commuters. The bus came along majestically through the snow, but it didn't stop. It was jammed to capacity, and the driver of the bus left us there talking to ourselves

The much discussed kayo of Enrico Venturi by Henry Armstrong in New York recently has given fight fans much food for thought as to whether the blow was foul or fair. In some quarters, Venturi has been accused of taking the easiest way out, while others claim the blow was low. In a series of pictures (above) the actual punch and that which transpired after were recorded by the camera. Arthur Donovan, third man in the ring counted the Italian boxer out and declared Armstrong a winner by a knockout. Perhaps you can decide the issue.

Braddock to Quit If Farr Licks Him

But How Can He Do It? Ask Former Champ Has Nice Little Nest Egg Of $150,000 in Mattress

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Jim Braddock ... out of this complete a career ... from the ring if Tommy Farr ... [illegible]

[illegible] his appetite for a punch in the mouth. The veteran has what is called a stomach full of fighting

If he beats Farr, and he is serenely confident ... [illegible] ... 20 years ... Braddock ... [illegible]

THEY NEVER COME BACK

Jersey Jim, one unto every man who ever held and lost the heavyweight title believes, somewhere deep in the back of his skull, that he can win it back

Most of them not only believed it, but tried it.

Corbett, who always swore that he lost his title to Jeffries because he misjudged the spring of one of the ring ropes, and bounced into a Jeffries hook, tried it again and got stiffened in the ninth round.

Dempsey came within a hair of ... in the seventh round of the second fight against Tunney, but lost the decision, and would have been knocked out if the fight had gone a few more rounds.

Carnera and Baer and Sharkey tried, with pathetic fruitlessness to recapture their lost peaks.

Max Schmeling, it would seem to us, has a better chance of being the first man to turn the trick than has Braddock

WILD RIGHT

Braddock has enough to retire on. Unbeknownst to press and public, Jim salted away a nice little gob out of his exhibition work, during that long drought between ... [illegible] ... Baer and lost it to Louis.

With his share of the Louis fight tossed in, Braddock has about $150,000 in the old crock over the family stove.

[illegible] ... stretches him out like a Friday

"I'll weigh a little less against Farr than I did against Louis," Jim was telling us. "About '95. Got a better frame of mind, too, than I had before that Chicago thing

"He's a bad fellow to have on your mind, that Louis. With the other fellow it's a lot different

"I always could beat a clownish fighter, although I guess this fellow's a little rougher than most of them.

"All I can see that Farr's got is a wild overhand right, and if I can't get out of the way of a punch like that, I'd better quit.

"Yeah, I'm through if he beats me, but how can he beat me? My timing's better than it was at Chicago

Joe Vosmik Here Feb. 2

Joe Vosmik, ... acquired by the Red Sox this winter, will make his initial Boston appearance since becoming a member of the Sox at the second annual dinner of the Baseball Writers' Association, Boston Chapter, at the Parker House Wednesday evening, Feb. 2.

Vosmik, one of the hardest hitting outfielders in baseball, was traded to the Red Sox by the St. Louis Browns in exchange for Buck Newsom, Roy Johnson and Red Kress in one of the two leading deals of the winter meetings.

The appearance of Vosmik will add considerable interest and color to the scribes' dinner and should help make it one of the outstanding events of this or any other banquet year.

Vosmik will arrive in Boston the morning of the dinner and will be accompanied by Billy Evans, the Sox farm chief, who discovered Joe in a sandlot contest in Cleveland.

Uncrowned Champ; Paddle Athlete

RING MOCKERY — THOUGH WITHIN FOUR months Fred Apostoli has administered fistic ether to two middleweight champions, he is still crownless himself. He knocked out Marcel Thil, of France, the International Federation's titleholder, last summer. Last week he biffed over Freddy Steele, U. S. middleweight monarch. Q.—What does that make Apostoli? A.—An Elk. Such is the artificial foolishness in the fight game that, because the U. S. does not credit Thil, and because, by pre-match agreement with the title-nursing Steele, both fighters weighed over the 160 limit, the fight was a non-title contest and Steele was still champion at the instant he lay on his back with his head in a satchel.

Racial Rubber, Paris Sour

DARK TRIUMPH—BEST NATURAL ATHLETE is the Negro despite white denial of equal athletic opportunity. Today champions of three pugilistic divisions varying shades of dark cuticle — Henry Armstrong in the featherweights, John Henry Lewis in the light heavy and Joe Louis in the heavyweight. And Armstrong may soon double as the lightweight titleholder as well. Greatest fight fallacy is the notion that Negroes' lack intestinal temerity. For natural rubber, courage and electric instinct, the Negro, perhaps because he has a thinner coating of artificial crust, is racially tops.

Derringer Asks To Be Traded

BRADENTON, Fla., Jan. 14—Paul Derringer, Cincinnati's ace pitcher of 1936, said today he had written the club asking to be traded.

"They want me to take a $10,000 cut," he said, "and I won't do it. I got $17,500 last year, and they sent me a contract for $7500 this year."

Derringer last year won 11 and lost 12 but was suffering from a double hernia and said Charlie Dressen made him pitch when he wasn't in shape.

Maine Swamped By Rhode Island

THE JURY DECIDES Set No. 15—Human Problem—No. 89

The Judge quickly reviewed the facts in a widely published trial of a very handsome, charming woman.

An attractive stenographer fell in love with her worldly-wise employer. He had her move into an apartment near his own. She knew he was married but he promised on this last trip to his home to divorce his wife, a wife that now prays for retribution.

He returned and confessed he had not told his wife but that he didn't want to let that interfere with their love. When he attempted to renew their affair she slapped him starting a fight that ended with his murder. How did the jury decide the case.

A. The Jury freed her.

B. The Jury found her guilty.

Things Moving At Fast Rate, Says Haney

President's Attitude Towards Business Is Eyed

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)
(Special to Boston Evening American)

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—Things seem to be moving fast!

Immediately after the President's conference with five business leaders, he announces a sort of convention with fifty assorted varieties.

The first question that will occur to many is: Does this mean real co-operation? Or is it a political move to pass the buck?

If the latter be the correct interpretation, what the whole thing means is that Mr. Roosevelt is saying to business men, "You try it!" (At the same time, he would be saying to the voters, "Now we'll see what they can do!")

Then he would continue to press for his wages and hours bill, his "reorganization" of the government, and his tax on corporate savings. And when unemployment continued, he would finally say, "I told you so. Now let me take control."

REAL CO-OPERATION

That would not be real cooperation. If Mr. Roosevelt is to cooperate, he must give as well as take. He has introduced his hasty reforms, and now he must accept modifications suggested by business men so that what is good can be made to work.

Let us hope that this is what he intends to do.

As I see it, there are in this situation only two chances of success. One is real cooperation based on mutual understandings and concessions. The other is a thorough defeat of the President. Naturally, the first chance is the better.

Why do these seem to be the alternatives? Because AT THE PRESENT TIME the trouble lies in the New Deal policies, and THE PROBLEM IS TO GET THOSE POLICIES CHANGED.

Therefore, if we are to get productive employment for the laborers, and prosperity for all of us, the President must either be convinced of the need for change, or he must be forced, as he was on the court packing issue.

Real co-operation means a voluntary change. Surrender by the President means a forced change. Why not make it real?

WHAT IS REQUIRED?

What sort of change is required? Just at present, it seems that the great need is to re-establish a basis for confidence in our political institution and economic organization. To this end, we need four changes:

(1) Legislation prepared and freely discussed by Congress without undue pressure. This means ending the system of forcing "must bills," prepared by the President's kitchen cabinet, through Congress.

(2) A steadfast and reasonably stable policy. This means not constantly shifting—one day attacking monopoly, and the next day proposing to control production and prices.

(3) A consistent policy based upon fundamental principles. This means deciding whether he wants goods abundant and cheap or scarce and dear, and whether the government is going into the electric light and power business or not.

(4) Aiding and improving private enterprise, or free individual initiative. This means at once and forever ending the attempt to spread the idea that democracy in business has failed. It means quitting the propaganda for "social control" by the federal executive.

I doubt if changing a few tax laws will do much good.

What we need now, is a government that will maintain the spirit of the Constitution, stand for principles, and stay put. We need a government that does not seek to substitute federal control for individual freedom, nor to turn "business" into "politics."

Carloadings Up 94,955 Cars

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP)—The Association of American Railroads reported today 552,314 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday.

This was an increase of 94,955 cars, or 20.8 per cent, compared with the preceding week; a decrease of 147,732, or 21.1 per cent, compared with a year ago, and a decrease of 223,441, or 28.8 per cent, compared with 1936.

Atlas Plywood To Pay Dividends

Directors of Atlas Plywood Corp. declared regular quarterly dividend of 31 cents a share on the preferred stock, payable February 1 to stock of record January 25 and a quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on common stock, payable February 15 to stock of record January 25. On November 15, last, a dividend of 50 cents a share on common was paid, also one of 50 cents on August 16.

More Cattle on Feed

Number of cattle on feed for market in corn belt states has been estimated by Department of Agriculture as 15 per cent larger than a year earlier.

Motor Car Buying Urged by Forbes

Hoping his words will help move the log-jam of used cars, and thus stimulate sale of new automobiles, the Boston Evening American today reprints in full the article by B. C. Forbes which appeared in its issues of Thursday.

Mr. Forbes' column is well worth re-reading. Here it is:

By B. C. FORBES

Motor manufacturers tell me that, because of the existing glut in the market, used automobiles can be purchased substantially below their real value.

The truth is that for every two new cars sold, three used cars are sold, motor men emphasize.

I bought my first automobile early this century, bought it when my income was rather modest.

I have always felt that I got more out of every dollar spent for a car than from any other purchase.

Therefore, I would strongly advise taking advantage of the extraordinary bargains today available in used cars. Purchasers will not only get more than their money's worth, but they can have the satisfaction of knowing that they are contributing to starting the nation on a new movement forwards and upwards.

"Let George Do It" is not the right attitude for any of us to adopt at this time.

It is not enough for President Roosevelt to call upon business and industrial leaders to stem expansion of unemployment. It is not enough for business and industrial leaders to sit back and await constructive action by Washington. You and I, ordinary citizens, should feel a sense of responsibility, since, collectively, we constitute a far more important factor than either President Roosevelt or all our business leaders combined.

Admittedly, the country awaits effective conciliatory and co-operative action by President Roosevelt and Congress. His conferences with outstanding industrial and utility leaders are encouraging symptoms.

Gratifying, too, are recent statements by certain industrialists that they plan to invest millions in plant renovation and construction.

But, after all, you and I, ordinary citizens, ordinary consumers, are the ones who can and will bring about either recovery or further contraction in business and contraction in employment.

Infinitely more dynamic in curing depression would be increased spending by you and me than increased spending by the federal government.

Suppose each of us possessing savings were to make up our minds to draw on them to the extent of 10 per cent for the purpose of acquiring additional necessaries or comforts, the fillip imparted to business and industry would be greater than all the money the administration proposes to hand out in work relief.

Perhaps you feel offhand, as I do, under existing and prospective uncertainties, that the wisest course to pursue is one of extreme conservatism in the matter of spending.

But if everybody were to curtail spending drastically, the inevitable result would be intensification of depression and a tremendous increase in unemployment.

On the other hand, if you and I and all other ordinary consumers should grasp the importance of the service we could render the nation by increasing our expenditures 10 per cent, the beneficial fruits would be beyond calculation.

Therefore, it is unpatriotic for any earner, high or humble, to disclaim any responsibility by declaring, "Let George Do It."

Shoe Industry's Spring Outlook Favorable

Buying at Chicago Fair Exceeded Expectations

While buying at the National Shoe Fair, which ended January 6, 1938, was not as great as the buying at the market last year, it exceeded earlier expectations and left manufacturers generally encouraged by the results with good business prospects for remainder of the current quarter at least.

Buying at the show, which was sponsored jointly by the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers Association and National Shoe Retailers Association, reached about $50,000,000, according to W. M. Jarman, president of General Shoe Corporation and president of the Shoe Fair.

It is understood retailers' stocks are much lower than they were in November and early December and that after the year-end clearance sales dealers will be in a good position to take on the new spring lines of shoes. Prices on the new lines are about 8 per cent to 10 per cent lower than prices at the peak in 1937 and are at a more normal level from the consumer's standpoint.

A survey among leading shoe manufacturers in the mid-west and New England indicates that production schedules are being stepped up considerably and should run at near capacity in the next 60 days, particularly makers who specialize in women's shoes. Makers of women's lines expect to be running at capacity until Easter at least.

R. J. Reynolds Earns $2.82

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Jan. 14 (AP) — R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company reported net profit for 1937, before deduction for flood losses, of $28,216,026, or $2.82 a share on the combined 10,000,000 shares of common and class B common stocks outstanding.

After making deduction for flood loss amounting to $613,654, the net amounted to $27,602,372 or $2.76 per share.

This compared with $29,253,135, or $2.92 per share in 1936.

Net sales for the year were $302,999,161, against $289,313,164 the previous year.

In a letter to stockholders on the subject of inventories, James A. Gray, president, said:

"During 1937, again, the higher prices paid to farmers for leaf tobacco and the heavier requirements of inventory to take care of continuing expansion in volume of the company's principal brands are reflected in substantially higher inventories, which at December 31, 1937, were $23,313,816 greater than at the end of the previous year."

Curb Market in Restricted Area

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (AP)—Buying activities were restricted in the Curb market today and most leaders backed down fractionally.

Utilities held their ground fairly well and activity in a few leaders was attributed to some traders' expectations of progress toward the amity goal of the administration and the private power companies.

Lower around midday were Gulf Oil, Creole Petroleum, Northern Power "A", Pantepec Oil, Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Consolidated Copper Mines.

Industrial specialties covered divergent ground. On odd lot dealings Ford Motors of Canada "B" and Cheesebrough Manufacturing rose a point or better. Jones & Laughlin Steel, North American Rayon "A", and Aluminum, Ltd., yielded 1 to around 2½.

Saco-Lowell Shops Resume Dividends

Saco-Lowell Shops has resumed dividends, making first distribution to stockholders in 12½ years. It has declared initial regular quarterly dividends of 25 cents each on class A and B convertible preferreds, and has declared a dividend of 25 cents on the common, all payable February 15 to stock of record February 1.

Last payment was one of $1.50 per share on the old 6 per cent preferred on July 1, 1925.

Brokers' Loans Up $8,000,000

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board reported that last week's loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York city totaled $682,000,000. The week ended Wednesday and the total represented an increase of $8,000,000 when compared with the previous week.

Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $1,021,000,000.

Conditions Favor Rise In Prices

Spring Hopes Seen Brightest In January

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

There are many signs that January, the traditional month of hope, when the disappointments of the old year are forgotten in forward looking to spring prospects, is again to prove a period of rising prices. Whether or not the uplift already begun in the half month passed is to carry well into February, and perhaps later prove to be the groundwork of a permanent recovery, is a matter that must, for the present at least, be decided on a day to day basis.

As we view the current situation the all-important commodity section is on firmer ground than in many months, if not in over a year. Using the Dow-Jones index of commodity future prices (cocoa, coffee, corn, cotton, hides, oats, rye, rubber, silk, sugar and wheat) we first note that since the end of March, 1937, a better than 30 point tumble has taken place. Second in importance is the fact that no downside progress has been made since the early part of November. It seems safe, therefore, to assume that following severe correction a period of stability set in at levels which the composite buyer and seller influencing demand and supply deem fair. If such be the case then cautious purchasing programs, calculated to cover only immediate needs, if suddenly bulwarked by a moderate amount of forward buying could bring a surprising response from commodities. And as this is the month in which spring hopes are strongest it does not seem too much to expect a rally in technically fit futures prices.

LABOR TO FORE

It begins to look as though labor would shortly bulk large in the news from the big industrial centers; steel, particularly. After a period of depression enforced quiet, the nearby expiration of contracts is forcing the issue whether capital and labor like it or not. For the first there is the problem of retaining gains already secured. For not only the strength of present membership, but ambitions for expansion as well would be endangered through an agreement permitting wage reductions. This would be doubly true in the event the big independents who have not signed kept the scales at present levels.

On the other side capital faces the problem of whether or not to try and appease the trust busters and anti-monopolists of political forces by seeking a reduction in pay, thereby paving the way for lower prices. A pretty problem it is, one that will require plenty of statesmanship in order that all may rise from the conference table satisfied winners. For in this game it seems force of circumstances make it most unlikely that a loser will be tolerated.

ENOUGH REACTION

In the opinion of this observer of market trends stock prices had about all the reaction that can reasonably be allowed for at this time. Few will quarrel with this statement when the current position of the averages is studied. The industrials have rammed their way through an important resistance level but rails, after a close approach, turned off once again. It stands to reason that if the two major groups are going to work harmoniously, as many believe they must, one is either going to lift or the other fall.

Since the failure of the rails to follow along on the upside has brought about a reaction, even though of moderate proportions, it is obvious that the beginnings of a depression movement are in evidence. And it is our contention that it can not go far without communicating a selling spirit to the whole list. We would be wary of any nearby reaction on which volume definitely picked up.

November Auto Financing Jumps

Wholesale financing of automobiles in November totaled $160,947,334, representing a sharp increase from the $134,010,000 in October and only $77,760,000 in September, the department of commerce reported.

In same month of 1936 this financing had a value of $133,555,000.

Utility Strength Provides Sedative for Nervous Mart

Chicago 'Change Anticipated SEC Drive

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Financial Writer

IN THE MIDDLE WEST, Jan. 14—A talk with Thaddeus R. Benson, president of the Chicago Stock Exchange, gives one the impression that this major bourse of the interior has cut its apron strings from the New York leadership.

With the Chicago rates below the revised New York commissions, there is an inducement for the public to place orders for stocks, listed in both markets, out here near the prairies. Even if, in due course, Chicago follows New York on rates, it is assumed here that some persons will have established the habit of placing orders through Chicago.

BOURSE STUDIED

Secondly, in connection with internal reorganization, the Chicago Exchange did not wait passively to determine what New York would do in a similar situation, but four months ago before the SEC invited such self-examination it delegated a firm of industrial engineers to study the bourse to decide how it could save money in operations and serve the public better. That report is now ready.

It includes recommendation for a paid president and various other internal changes intended to take the exchange out of the private club class, and make it operate more like a business corporation.

Thirdly the Chicago bourse, after the current slump, intends to redouble efforts to increase new listings. Its executives think that its legitimate field is primarily among smaller, growing companies whose stockholders are located primarily in the Middle West.

Incidentally, after a few panics and intense regulation, the Chicago Exchange finds itself with a net worth of $2,000,000 representing the residue of reserves accumulated when knighthood was in flower among the brokers prior to the October 25, 1929, panic.

In connection with new listings, Mr. Benson pointed to a contradiction between the original objective of the SEC of decentralizing the brokerage business of the nation and the actual result of strict listing requirements which have relatively favored the New York market. Mr. Benson said that since the same listing qualifications were required under SEC rules in New York and the interior the practical effect had been to favor the New York Exchange.

EXCHANGES RATED

Benson rated the various exchanges in dollar volume as follows: New York Stock Exchange, New York Curb Exchange, Boston Stock Exchange and the Chicago Stock Exchange.

Benson pointed out that the Chicago bourse had anticipated SEC thinking on questionnaires into the financial status of all members.

It has for several years required semi-annual questionnaires from member commission firms which dealt with the public, but recently pioneered by required similar questionnaires from all members, including floor brokers. As a result, four members were dismissed on financial grounds.

Benson recognizes that the net effect of the reform measures on business volume has been to reduce activity. He thinks that as soon as the current slump is over the time will be ripe for rebuilding—for new proportional effort. This will involve not only a drive for new listings, but also a new effort to acquaint the public with the economic services rendered by stock exchanges.

Mr. Benson declared that there was no division of opinion among the governors of the exchange as to the need for constructive action along these lines.

Building Permits In Massachusetts

The aggregate value represented by applications filed in December for permits to build in 55 Massachusetts municipalities, as reported to the state department of labor, was $4,175,930, which showed an increase of $280,728, or 7.2 per cent when compared with the total for these municipalities in November and a decrease of $1,076,544, or 20.5 per cent, compared with aggregates for December, 1936.

Engineering Awards

Engineering construction awards for the week total $42,590,000, a decrease of 13 per cent from last week and 3 per cent from the corresponding week in 1937, according to the Engineering News-Record.

Power Gesture Of President Is Factor

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—Strength in utilities today provided a sedative for a somewhat nervous stock market.

While activity was moderate, early declines running to a point or so were converted into gains of as much in most cases. There was an assortment of losers in evidence, however, near the fourth hour.

Stimulating the comeback, brokers said, was a friendly gesture toward operating power and light companies made by President Roosevelt at his press conference and lessening of tension over the French political and financial crisis.

COMMODITIES UNEVEN

Inclined to edge forward after a stumbling start were Consolidated Edison, North American, Columbia Gas, Electric Power & Light, American Water Works, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, General Electric, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Newport Industries, Douglas Aircraft and Stone & Webster.

Behind most of the time were Allied Chemical, Standard Oil of N. J., Sears Roebuck, Inland Steel, Union Carbide, Owens-Illinois, American Telephone, St. Joseph Lead and Eastman Kodak.

Gold mines were in the limelight for a while, with Homestake touching another new high for more than a year. They slipped into a narrow range in subsequent proceedings.

Rails were better following today's official freight loadings figures for last week disclosing a more than seasonal increase.

An upturn of some 10,000 cars in this week's automobile output was a sustaining influence for the motors.

Coppers had to contend with statistics showing a sharp gain in world stocks of this metal. Offsetting this were reports of recently expanding sales in the domestic market and prospects for much greater demand for armaments and utilities.

FRANC RECOVERS

Resignation of the French cabinet was followed by recovery of the franc in New York dealings. Foreign exchange transactions in Paris were suspended, but the Bourse closed on the upside.

Tape Symbols In Shift

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (AP)—The coveted symbol "A" on the stock exchange ticker tape was shifted to capital stock of the Anaconda Copper Mining Co., from the common shares of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway.

The Santa Fe stock was designated "SF," thus making it more readily recognizable by those who call the road the "Santa Fe" instead of the "Atchison."

Common stock of the Chrysler Corp. drew the symbol "C" heretofore assigned to Anaconda Copper. Chrysler has been "K" on the tape.

The changes were announced by the committee on arrangements, effective January 24. Some tape-watchers saw the shift as indication of the increased trading interest in copper shares the last few years, although the exchange constantly has been re-arranging symbols to make them more representative of the companies behind the stocks.

Retail Trade 2 to 5 P. C. Higher

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (AP)—Aided by January clearance sales, retail trade this week ran 2 to 5 per cent above last week and 3 to 6 per cent above a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

"Consumers' attention centered strongly on January 'white goods' promotions," the credit agency said. "With prices on some of these items the lowest in several years, many retailers reduced their inventories below the corresponding 1937 level.

"In many industrial districts, retailers were heartened by the strength of purchasing power, in view of employment curtailment and payroll shrinkage."

Buying was spotty, sales spurting in some localities and sagging in others, but for the East retail trade averaged 2 to 7 per cent ahead of last year. New England sales were 2 to 6 per cent above the 1937 comparative. Middle West up 4 to 8 per cent, Northwest up 4 to 9 per cent, South up 3 to 10 per cent, Southwest up 4 to 8 per cent, and Pacific Coast unchanged to 2 per cent higher.

Wholesale buying ran 3 to 10 per cent ahead of last year.

"Fresh confirmation of inventory reduction in many retail branches was numerous in most of the principal wholesale markets," the agency declared. "Replacement orders, almost without exception, specified immediate deliveries, and were extended to merchandise which was considered overstocked less than a month or two ago.

"Placement of advance commitments still was restricted and much forward business was refused, due to wholesalers' fears of upward price adjustments."

French Franc Up Sharply

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (AP)—Despite the fall of the French government the franc advanced sharply in the foreign exchange market today in light dealings, with the gain running to .04 of a cent. In early afternoon the French unit was around 3.32 cents.

Most of the demand, it was said, came from "shorts" who wished to cover commitments. With all foreign exchange dealings suspended in Paris traders generally awaited developments before going into the market for the currency.

Bankers said they did not expect active dealings to be resumed until early next week. There was virtually no trading in francs for future delivery and quotations were merely nominal.

Jingle Writers Get Last Chance

Opportunity to Win Cash Prizes for Clever Lines Will End Today

Last call for jinglers!

Today is your last chance to participate in the Boston Evening American and Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters Jingle Contest and win your share in the last of 30 cash and guest theater ticket prizes.

The last jingle in a series of five is printed below. All you have to do is fill in the last line, and send it in together with the other four jingles, the first appearing in Monday's paper, to the "Nothing Sacred," Jingle Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass.

Here, YOU try it!

The story of Hazel and Wally
Is fresh and amusing, by golly!
The girl has got something
And the boy is no dumb thing—

The idea for the contest is inspired by the David O. Selznick technicolor production of the hilarious comedy, "Nothing Sacred," co-starring Carole Lombard and Fredric March, and opens today at both Loew's State and Orpheum theaters.

Remember, when mailing your entry, be sure that you have the complete set of five jingles.

No entry will be accepted bearing the postmark later than midnight Saturday, January 15.

Here is the list of prizes: First award, $15; second prize, $10; third, $5; fourth, $3, and fifth, $2. The following twenty-five will receive a pair of guest tickets to see "Nothing Sacred," the first comedy ever presented on the screen in technicolor.

Plant to Reopen

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 14 (AP)—Three hundred and fifty employes, mostly women, will return to work Monday when the Louis Miller & Company plant, shirt manufacturers, resumes operations, it was announced today. The plant closed on Dec. 15.

12 Snow Trains For Skiers

Yesterday's snowstorm, bringing perfect weather for winter sports enthusiasts, brought also the announcement that the Boston and Maine railroad will send the largest fleet of snow trains out to various skiing centers this week-end.

Passenger Traffic Manager H. F. McCarthy announced that more than a dozen trains have already been scheduled and more may be added.

Austen Lake To Be Speaker

Fortified by information gathered for his recent series on Ireland, Austen Lake, Boston Evening American columnist, will be the main speaker on that subject when Regis College Guild holds its first meeting of the New Year at the League House at 1 Arlington street on January 18.

Mary Galvin Breau will entertain with some of Thomas Moore's selections.

Mrs. Edward J. Rhatigan and Mrs. G. Frank MacDonald will receive and Mrs. Leo Birmingham and Mrs. Herbert L. Connolly of Brighton, Mrs. Roy Conner of Arlington and Mrs. Park Hurley of Belmont will assist at tea.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

✚ ✚ Where no wise guidance is, the people falleth; but in the multitude of counsellors there is safety.—Proverbs XI., 14 ✚ ✚

The text for today is suggested by the Rev. David P. Gaines, Baptist minister, Waterbury, Ct. The next text will be suggested by the Rev. Dr. Allen Jackson, Presbyterian minister, Roxbury.

The Editor Says:

LORD BEAVERBROOK, British newspaper owner who sold Englishmen the BUY BRITISH idea and thus ended the depression in England within two years, says AMERICA COULD DO THE SAME THING.

Asked by Damon Runyon of the Hearst newspapers what result an effective BUY AMERICAN campaign would have on our eleven million unemployed, he said:

"IF YOU BOUGHT FROM YOURSELF, YOU WOULD NECESSARILY OPEN YOUR FACTORY DOORS AS WE DID, AND PROVIDE JOBS FOR YOUR UNEMPLOYED."

It has less than a million and a half unemployed, largely unemployables.

It has markets for its raw materials and for its manufactured goods.

England was hit at the same time and as hard by depression as other nations, including America. But it made REHABILITATION OF INDUSTRY—

A PATRIOTIC CRUSADE.

Englishmen bought British goods OUT OF LOYALTY. They did not send their working capital and wages out of the country, as we did and NOW DO, to keep factories going in other countries and to employ people in other countries.

By BUYING BRITISH, they opened BRITISH factories, gave jobs and wages to BRITISH workmen.

As Lord Beaverbrook says: "England, as a result of the BUY BRITISH movement, now buys many things at home that it might have bought abroad."

Of course, America could do the same, SHOULD HAVE DONE IT LONG AGO.

When American money is SPENT FOR AMERICAN GOODS, we will keep company with England as the prosperous nation we ought to be.

POLITICAL DECEPTION

—is the proper name for the proposed levy which Senator Cotton's Committee on Taxation chooses to call a CONSUMERS' TAX. It fools nobody, save possibly the politicians who invented it.

An illustration of the deception is the committee members' promise that the tax will reduce the burden on real estate. How do they know this? Frankly and honestly, they don't.

Anybody not a politician can see that in the long run the property owner would pay more than he ever paid before. He would not only pay a substantial tax on his house or factory, but he would also pay a tax on everything he bought.

Houses require paint, plumbing, electrical fixtures, wall paper, hardware, windows, shingles and other necessities too numerous to mention. And these are only a few of the thousands of things that would be included in this so-called CONSUMERS' TAX.

In other words, the proposed levy might save the property owner five dollars on one hand. BUT IT WOULD SURELY TAKE TWENTY DOLLARS OUT OF HIS OTHER HAND.

The real reason for the new tax is that politicians on Beacon Hill want forty-five million dollars MORE spending money. They admit that. They have to. Political deception won't hide that fact.

MR. DEVER'S APPEAL

—to the Legislature to grant him powers approaching those of a dictator interests all citizens, none more than those who wonder why he has not used all the powers he already has.

Not the least interesting of Mr. Dever's numerous requests is that he be given authority similar to that of New York's famous "racket-busting" district attorney, Thomas E. Dewey.

Down deep in his heart, the Attorney General must know that no group of Senators and Representatives can ever transform him into a Thomas E. Dewey. He will have to do that for himself.

Therefore, if Mr. Dever really does desire to resemble Mr. Dewey, he should adopt the Dewey determination to put the criminal "higher-ups" where they belong—behind bars. For that work, the Attorney General's present powers are adequate. In fact, they are more than adequate.

THE RIGHT STAND

—is taken by Governor Hurley when he calls upon the Roosevelt Administration to repeal the Undistributed Profits Tax.

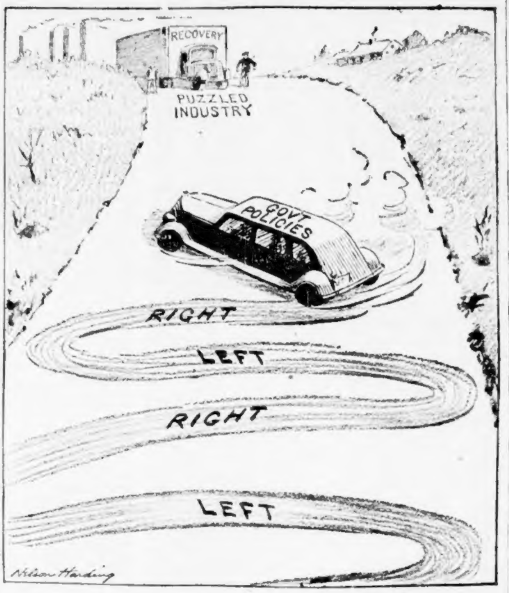
"It is a definite handicap on business," the Governor accurately says. "I believe the Government should make it possible for business and industry to give jobs to those who want jobs."

Common sense says that this is the truth. When the greedy hand of the tax collector carries away a big portion of a mill's or factory's money, it is obvious that every dollar carried away is a dollar that will never go into a worker's pay envelope.

When the bureaucrats in Washington wake up to the fact that the average man prefers a PERMANENT job in private industry to a TEMPORARY job on the WPA or some other relief project, the United States will be a better and happier nation.

Why There Is a "Recession"

By Nelson Harding



Industry wants to go ahead.

But before Industry can proceed, it has to know in which way Government is going.

If Government will set its own course, and stick to it, Industry will be able to speed up.

That will be more important to the unemployed than to anybody else, for millions of jobs depend upon it.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Jan. 14.

THOUGHTS while strolling: Memory—that wire jigger on the end of the leather shoe string. No one has burned the candle at both ends more than Rudy Vallee—but look! He's always merry and bright.

The only write-when-he-pleases columnist: Walter Lippmann. Add up all the accomplished strutters and you still won't have a Harry Richman. Those girls around the bars who imitate the flat, metallic voice of Katharine Hepburn. But all they get is a free drink now and then.

Full moon effect with mustache: George Rector. Buddies and business partners: Messmore Kendall and Major Bowes. Colonel E. M. House's sphinx-like expression of calm. Somehow you have a feeling Don Herold is one of the fellows with snap shots of the children to spring on you.

Frank Case could pass for a slightly shrunk Dwight Fiske. Whatever became of Mrs. Enrico Caruso? Park avenue doormen stand at salute when ex-President Hoover strolls to his Waldorf apartment. Jack Lait is another finger snapper at the passing years.

Eula McLary sounds like a glide on roller skates. Last of the bang wearers: Helen Morgan and Irene Bordoni. Joe Kennedy would be a pip for a "gleaming teeth" ad. I have to giggle at the invitation to speak on wild animal night at an adventure club. Me—who takes to the hills at a loose cow!

Maury H. B. Paul, ace society scribbler, blended his Christmas card sendings with the times this year. Those on his list received the cards he received last year with a pen line drawn through the names of the senders and Paul's written underneath. For instance, ours was his last year's card from Irving and Ellin Berlin. One suspects, however, that Paul's chauffeur delivers them in his master's robin's egg blue Rolls.

Among devoted newspaper marrieds are George Clark, an editor on the Mirror, and his wife, Kay Parsons, a singer on the radio. Clark occupies a penthouse on First avenue. He works days and his wife at night. She gets home around 4 a. m. but he never retires until she arrives. And he not only spends every night at home but calls up his wife every hour or so.

Phil Plant, who is hiking off on another safari in Africa in his de-luxe trailer, recently showed a travel organization the first colored pictures of animals to come out of the dark continent.

Plant, who made his first speech in public, revealed himself a modest fellow with amusing slant on his experimentations. He confessed his amateurism by explaining he took about 8500 feet but only got 1200 feet of fairly distinct pictures. His most comical shots were of giraffes and, coupled with his comments, they fairly rolled the guests in the aisles.

Incidentally, when the late John Ringling used to feel a mite melancholy he would visit his menagerie tent and watch the giraffes. He usually came away grinning.

Katharine Cornell is one of the stage stars who has never succumbed to the movies, radio or advertising endorsements. Although she has been besieged from time to time by offers from all three. On one occasion she is reputed to have been offered $10,000 merely to say she enjoyed the aroma of a certain Parisian perfume.

Hollywood has offered to let her write her own ticket. She loves the legitimate theater and nothing could induce her to desert it. Anyway, she has amassed considerable fortune sticking to her last.

Hirsute stuff: Forrest Davis, magazine writer, has joined the thin triad of scribblers in New York who are sporting Van Dykes, the other two being Ernest Boyd and S. S. Van Dyne.

I don't get around to cafes featuring low comedians often, but when I do there is always a laugh. At a noisy hurrah on West 52d one was telling—and it is probably old to the sophisticates—how a bum accosted him on the street with the announcement he had not had a bite in four days. "So," cracked the comic, "I bit him."

The Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

In love, as in motoring, a woman is always disobeying the traffic rules—and then wondering how the "smash-up" occurred.

When a man's stenographer begins to observe that his buttons are loose, it is time for his wife to take notice and sit up—and sew them ON.

Choosing a wife is the most important act of a man's life—and usually the one to which he gives the least thought, time and intelligence.

When a girl refuses to kiss a man these days, he is never disconcerted; he is merely astonished that she should be so blind to her good luck.

A man who strays for love of another woman may sometimes be reclaimed; but the man who strays for love of amusement or love of adventure will never "stay put" for any girl.

A romantic woman is constantly making an altar of her heart and burning incense before a succession of idols of clay—a pastime of which she never seems to tire.

Love is a medley in which a man's soul sings an aria while his heart plays a waltz and his pulse beats to swing-time.

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

GENERAL YU HAN-MOU, commander-in-chief of the Chinese armies in South China, says he will burn Canton to the ground and that the Japanese, if they take it, will get only embers and wreckage. The Chinese already have destroyed many millions of dollars of property in the path of the advancing Japanese.

Even without war, Chinese millions live precariously. Their food supply is barely adequate to sustain life. The Japanese invasion drives desperate multitudes into the impoverished hinterland, destroying their own wealth, rather than have the Japanese get it.

And the conquering Japanese may be sure of encountering all the apocalyptic horrors of plague, famine, chaos and ruin when they gain their prize. The effort in policing and reorganizing these frantic starving, homeless hordes is unthinkable.

Such large-scale destruction of a nation's wealth as that in which China is now engaged is something unusual in history; that is, destruction by the conquered nation.

In the past it has always been the conquerers who ravaged, looted, burned and pillaged. North and Central China have suffred perhaps more than any other spot in the planet in the savage warfare of Mongols and Tartans through the centuries.

But somehow, life went on. Babies were born, new trees grew in the blasted forests, fields were tilled and scholars resumed their teaching of the ancient wisdom.

Amazing are the recuperative powers of humankind, the stubborn vitality of the breed, devasted by its own stupidity.

In 1162 there was born a Mongol baby with a blood clot on its face. Its mother, Yulu, read in this a sign that the child would be a conqueror. At the age of 13 he was Genghis Khan, the Mongol emperor, with his insatiate lust for power revealed even in those early years.

He warred first against the Tartans, who had taken North China from the Sung dynasty. There were 700,000 men in one of his battles, a fiendishly ruthless encounter in which 200,000 lay dead on the field. He won the battle and took the rich city of Herat, razed it to the ground, destroyed every living thing in its walls—and again the rich city of Herat was swept away in blood and fire, sparing no hearthstone, no blade of grass.

For 40 years, his demonic rage carried Genghis Khan through Asia, in a wanton onslaught of killing and destruction. His dominion of death lay from the China Sea to the banks of the Dneiper. At the age of 75, still intent on killing, he turned back through the Gobi desert, planning again to visit ruin on North China.

One night as he sat alone in his tent, his soothsayers came before him, prostrated themselves and told him they had found an evil sign in the heavens. Five planets were in a strange conjunction which was a clear portent of his death if he continued to North China. He executed the soothsayers, struck his tent and took the road. He sank to the ground and died with a mysterious illness.

Whatever modern historians may tell us about the economic roots of war, plain tribal savagery, paranoia, dynastic ambition, mental unbalance and infantile foolishness, have probably harvested more human lives than the money itch.

Will Japan be an exception to this historic rule as China's millions are driven into one vast despairing flux of misery and pain? Japan won't put salt on the fields, but, such are the laws of economic survival today, destroying an urban civilization may amount to the same thing.

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

THE Communists of Russia are still celebrating their "first election," which is really not the first "election" in Russia at all.

Many of the younger Russians who are voting for the first time would be dumfounded to know that the elections under the Czar were more nearly real elections than the rubber-stamping of ballots which Czar Stalin now calls "the expression of the popular will."

After the upheavals of 1905 in Russia the Duma, or national assembly, was instituted. It was organized on six class levels—large landed proprietors, small landed proprietors, capitalists, the middle-class, workingmen and peasants. They voted for electors, who chose another set of electors, who chose still another set of electors, who finally chose members of the Duma.

Although about 70,000,000 peasants and 12,000,000 workingmen voted in these elections until the Duma was finally dissolved in 1917 by the Lenin-Trotsky raid on Russia, the wealthy classes were permitted to elect about twice as many members of the national Duma as the workingmen and peasants.

This, of course, was not democracy as we understand it, but under Nicholas the Second various opposition parties did exist. The Czar's power, by orders in council, was, however, still supreme.

But in spite of the semi-farcical Duma, evolution was proceeding in Russia toward real democracy and the Duma was a far more representative body than is Stalin's supreme council today, with its one thousand fear-stricken robots.

Should we support our aged and needy writers and artists by pensions out of the public purse?

Edgar Lee Masters, American poet and novelist, thinks so. He has written to Senator LaFollette urging him to introduce a bill that "will take care of America's creative men and women as is done in England."

He quotes the cases of Oliver Herford, Don Marquis, Edgar Allan Poe, etc., in support of his contention that those "crippled in the means of life" who have given of their creative minds freely to the national cultural chest should be supported by the government.

This sounds good in theory, but in theory only. Certainly, if we support the men who fought for us when they are disabled, it would seem only just that we should support the disabled men who make us famous in the arts.

But, practically, all such pensions tend to destroy the writer's and author's independence of mind, if any.

And what body of men is to decide who are the "creative artists" and who are just ordinary men trying to write and more ordinary trying to be Beethovens?

Regent Horthy of Hungary has been reading Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar." You will recall that Mark Antony offered the crown to Julius Caesar thrice "and he put it by with the back of his hand, thus; and then the people fell a-shouting."

Caesar has one up on Horthy, for in 17 years Horthy says he has refused the crown of Hungary twice. The Hungarian Nazis want to proclaim him "King Nicholas the First" with dictatorial powers. But Regent Horthy's no gets weaker with the years. He now says a "republican form of government is unthinkable." Why "unthinkable"?

Maybe he is waiting for the third call—and, unlike Caesar, he may say: "Put the crown on me. Duty first!"

The Political Parade

By George Rothwell Brown

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.

A CERTAIN group of Democratic Senators who hold—or are close to holding—the balance of power at the north end of the Capitol, have long felt that Mr. Roosevelt has his eye upon them.

It is a singular coincidence that at the very moment the Administration's Anti-Lynching Bill, to fasten Federal police power upon the States which members of this group largely represent, driving another wedge between the New Deal and Democracy, the President was making, in his Jackson Day speech, certain references which rubbed old-fashioned Democracy's fur up the wrong way some more.

Democrats of the ancient regime viewed the speech as a bid by the President for Republican support.

Especially they resented Mr. Roosevelt's reference to the vote he cast for his cousin, T. R., in 1904, on the ground that he was better than the Democrat who happened to be running for President in that year.

Now this reaction is curious, since the Democrats who don't like to see the Pesident flirting with, and winning over, the erstwhile followers of Theodore Roosevelt and Lincoln, would themselves welcome a coalition of conservative Democrats and Republicans, as being perhaps the sole way in which to bring the New Deal to a close in 1940.

The more that sort of coalition is studied, the clearer becomes the realistic view of practical politicians that the only way in which the Republican Party can exert its full strength in the Presidential elections two years hence is through the Republican Party.

There is more under way in Washington at the moment, looking toward the nomination of a conservative Democratic ticket in 1940, than appears on the surface.

There is some quiet maneuvering on foot. The name of one conservative Democrat of high distinction, which is being heard behind the scenes, in connection with the Democratic nomination in the next Presidential campaign is that of a party leader of considerable distinction. If it ever is brought into the open it will create something of a sensation.

The confusion of purpose within the Administration is observable in nearly every direction. The theory upon which the President recommended the defeat of the Ludlow War Referendum Resolution, is at variance, of course, with his Jackson Day speech against minority control of business.

Many believe that there must be a clarification of thought in Washington before there can be any consistent action by Congress looking toward the great need of the hour, the economic recovery of the country.
